SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon has halted a planned move to make public summaries of some Watergate-related tapes, the Western White House acknowledged Friday.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said Nixon and his aides were "re-evaluating the question of releasing summaries of the tapes" because of a subpoena from the Senate Watergate Committee for what he called massive amounts of tapes and documents.

Another reason, he said, is that one tape provided by the White House for use in a court suit was played at a recent Washington cocktail party.

Other sources said Nixon has made a definite decision against disclosing summaries of seven tapes that have been turned over to Watergate special prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

The Washington Post reported in its Friday edition that the decision to withhold summaries reflected a belief by senior aides that the recordings indicate that, at the least, Nixon knew of the Watergate cover-up several days before last March 21, the date the President says he first learned of it.

Asked about this, Warren said, "there is nothing in these tapes that is inconsistent with the President's May 22 statement" saying he had become aware of the cover-up on March 21.

At another point, however, Warren recalled that Nixon has said there "could be ambiguity" in assessing the tapes, leading different listeners to reach different conclusions.

The White House spokesman went on to say that if release of the tapes to the Watergate committee led to selective, piecemeal public disclosure, this "could lead to confusion in the mind of the American public and further distortion of the facts of the case."

In November, Nixon promised to make full public disclosures concerning the Watergate conspiracy, operations of the White House "plumbers" group, handling of an ITT antitrust case, political contributions by milk producers, and his personal finances.

To date, only the financial disclosures have been made, and in Washington. White House aide Melvin R. Laird said Friday there will be disclosure of documents dealing with ITT and the milk producers. He did not mention the Watergate burglary or the cover-up nor the activities of the "plumbers."

Asked if the White House now has decided against making any public disclosures relating to the "plumbers," Warren said, "I have nothing on that" but said Nixon's desire to clear up all Watergate-related matters "remains the same."

White House sources have reported Nixon will resist the Watergate committee's subpoena for tapes and documents.

"I have nothing to say on that subject," said Warren.

One Post story said two unnamed Nixon aides have told that newspaper they no longer are convinced Nixon was innocent of involvement in the Watergate cover-up.

Warren insisted that all of Nixon's key associates believe firmly in his integrity and his innocence and that "conclusion drawn to the contrary are erroneous."

In a related development, the U.S. Court of Appeals Friday ordered U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica to reconsider a ruling that denied the Senate Watergate committee access to five White House tape recordings and other developments. The taped conversations were between the President and former White House counsel John W. Dean III.

Sirica ruled Oct. 17 that he lacked jurisdiction to enforce the committee's subpoenas for the tapes and documents. Since then Congress voted him the power. The appellate decision was based on the new law, which Nixon allowed to become law without his signature Dec. 17.

The Watergate committee has subpoenaed nearly 500 tape recordings and hundreds of other items from the White House.

'Possibility' Of Plea Hinted In Hoyt Case

By DEAN TERRILL
Southwest Nebraska Bureau

Curtis — A new development in the Hoyt murder case appeared a likelihood Friday following a consultation of authorities here.

Frontier County Atty. Fred Schroeder declined to make a statement, but did indicate the "possibility" of a plea within the next few days by the McCook couple charged in the case. Complaints of first-degree murder were filed last week against Harold Nokes, 45, and his wife Ena, 44.

"I don't know when there will be further official action in the case," stated Schroeder. "That's all I can say at this time."

Barring a change in procedure, the couple are scheduled to appear in Frontier

County Court for a joint preliminary hearing Jan. 14. Both are being held without bond. Nokes in the Frontier County jail at Curtis, and his wife at Lincoln County jail at North Platte.

Schroeder said that Lancaster County Atty. Paul Douglas, who will help prosecute the case, intends to be in Curtis Monday. This will be his first consultation there with authorities, although he has been working on the case in Lincoln.

The couple are specifically accused of killing Mrs. Wilma Hoyt, 57, of rural Culbertson. She and her husband, Edwin, 56, disappeared Sept. 23.

Authorities suspect the Nokes of shooting both the Hoyts, then dismembering their bodies and disposing of them in Harry Strunk Lake. Numerous body parts found there have been identified as those of the Hoyts.

Lack Of Meat Spokesmen Frustrates Solons

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Efforts by the Legislature's Agriculture Committee to learn why retail meat prices remain high while cattle feeders are losing money were frustrated Friday by a lack of spokesmen for the meat packing industry and the retail food industry.

The only food retailer willing to brave senators' questions was Joseph Lipton, representing Food City which operates two stores in Omaha doing an annual volume of $20 million.

Lipton said his store was forced to buy meat in the feedlot and have it processed at a cost of over 90 cents a pound but was allowed to sell it for only 70 cents a pound during the six-week meat price freeze.

Half-Cent Profit

"Our normal markup overall is around 17% but it varies a great deal on one product from one week to the next because of specials. The average net profit on a dollar's worth of business is about a half cent. There are only three chain stores in the nation that do much better than that by making 2¢ on a dollar," he said.

Lipton said he based his week's meat price on what he had to pay for meat on Wednesday and then guaranteed the price for a week.

"We just call the wholesaler and get the price and that settles it. We have no control over the price we pay for meat. If our price goes up, so does the consumer's price, and if our price goes down so does the price we charge," he said.

Lipton said he didn't believe figures that show that food costs only 16% of the average family's income.

"It may be true for some families, but you have people who earn $3,000 a year lumped in with those that make $10,000 or $50,000. Obviously the lower income people spend a larger percentage on food than the wealthy do."

Asked for suggestions on what livestock feeders could do to get higher prices, Lipton suggested that farmers needed to limit livestock sales. "Get organized. Don't produce the meat until you get a market for it," he suggested.

Bankers Worry

Several bankers expressed concern about the future of the cattle feeding industry, citing huge losses by some of their customers.

Typical of the figures presented were an example of a large Midwest cattle feeder described by Ray Weilage of the National Bank of Commerce in Lincoln.

"This sample feeder fed a total of 73 pens of cattle for a total of 13,912 head during 1973. His total profit on the first 43 pens fed was $295,450, which was great, but on the last 30 pens of cattle he lost $442,114, or his year's effort cost him $146,664 overall. He lost everything he made on the first 43 pens in addition to the $146,000," Weilage explained.

"The income was large but the losses on the last cattle were even larger. The best animal made a profit of $75.48 but the largest loss was $171.99. The losses were much greater than the gains," he said.

An equally grim picture was painted by Don

Hovendick, president of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Omaha. He said:

"We do 90% of our business with farmer feeders. We are literally going to see hundreds of them forced out of business. We have feeders who were worth $250,000 in July who will be unable to feed cattle next year or ever again because they simply will be unable to get together the capital to start up again. This has been the worst disaster the cattle feeder industry in the state has ever experienced."

Tight Supply Seen

M. J. Hankins, representing the Stanton County Livestock Feeders Association, told the committee that unless the price of cattle improved in the next few days, the consumer would find meat supplies very tight and prices extremely high during much of 1974.

Hankins called for the federal government to act as a referee in the marketplace to make sure that each segment of the meat industry got a fair shake.

The lack of packer representatives at the hearing particularly irked Sens. Loran Schmit of Bellwood and Calvin Carsten of Avoca.

Both men suggested that the committee might consider utilizing its seldom used power to subpoena witnesses from the major meat packing and retail firms in the state.

Schmit, chairman of the Agriculture Committee, said he didn't expect it to take any immediate action on the basis of information collected during the hearing Friday.

"We really need information from the packers to get a complete picture first," he said.

Youth in Action Culler Junior High Students Pick Up 3,800 Phone Books

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

When you turn 150 Culler Junior High students loose on a project, they just never seem to stop.

At least that's what teacher Fred Richardson thought when his ecology students decided to join the drive to recycle telephone books for the Salvation Army.

Within a week, the youngsters collected more than 3,800 phone books. At 17 trees per ton, the kids put their math skills to work and figured they'd saved 85 trees.

315 Million Names

If they'd calculated a bit more, they would have discovered those books contained more than 315 million names.

But then the stacks of directories piled against the Culler building at 52nd and Vine was mind-boggling enough!

"When the Salvation Army said they would pick up over 140, we thought we would try that," said science teacher Richardson. "We never thought we'd get 3,800."

But that junior high energy just kept going and going . . . and going.

The individual prize for most books collected went to student Jill Knott, who brought in 918 of the directories herself.

Quite A Job

Student Randy Schnabel, who counted the new arrivals early each morning, thought he'd never get the job done.

Tim Helms, another of the campaign organizers, said the books were collected literally "all over town."

The Lincoln Building alone yielded about 700, he noted. And he said he "went around on my paper route and collected from people."

Major John Kimmons of the Salvation Army said this week that the books are still trickling in, to be bundled and sent off for recycling into other paper products.

The total collected thus far is more than 50 tons, and nearly one-fifth of that total was the work of two Lincoln schools — Culler and Morley Elementary.

Over 8 Tons

Combined, the two schools brought in more than eight tons. Kimmons said young people played a big part in the whole effort, with the schools helping and the Lancaster 4-H organization providing more legwork.

Proceeds from the campaign will go to support the Salvation Army's alcohol rehabilitation project, which Kimmons noted serves 40 to 50 men at a time with a total care program.

The program's annual budget totals some $250,000, and it's supported in part by the army's year-round paper collection effort . . . an effort that got a big boost this holiday season with the help of scores of area youths.

Gas Gouging To Be Eyed

©The New York Times

Washington — Acting Attorney General Robert H. Bork announced Friday that the Department of Justice would seek restraining orders against gasoline dealers found to be charging motorists excessive prices over the New Year's weekend.

Bork noted in a statement that recent reports told of "gas stations charging customers as much as 99.9 cents a gallon" for fuel. "This sort of price gouging at a time of short supply cannot go unchallenged," he declared.

Another Justice Department official explained that, although his agency would continue to be on the alert for price cougers during the New Year, Bork's order was aimed primarily at stopping the practice over the next four days, when the expected closing of many gasoline stations would provide "a better atmosphere for gougers to operate."

"We're not going to tell you what the minimum standard is," one Justice official said. "We don't want to say to them, this is as far as you can go."

The official noted, however, that, under a formula determined by the Cost of Living Council, each station was required to post on its pumps the legal price ceiling as part of the government's economic stabilization program.

Any station owner or manager who chooses to exceed this price, he said, "certainly runs the risk" of finding himself the subject of legal action by the Justice Department.

Snow Falls In South, Central

The National Weather Service Friday night reported a 100-mile-wide band of snow moved south from a line southeast of Omaha to south of Grand Island, then westward to near McCook.

Heavier snow fell during a two-hour period, diminishing about midnight Friday, in a 20-mile band from north of Lincoln to west of Kearney.

NWS said it expected about 2 to 3 inches of snow by Saturday morning in the Lincoln area.

Periods of light snow were forecast for Saturday, but no major accumulation was anticipated.

Comet May Be Seen Near Sun

Nebraska Wesleyan University Professor Carroll Moore said Friday that the Comet Kohoutek might be visible during daylight hours Saturday just east of the sun.

He said viewers should stand in the shade to shield out the sun and avoid telescopes and binoculars because of potential eye damage.

Solzhenitsyn's Novel Tells Soviet Horrors

©The New York Times
New York — Aleksandr I. Solzhenitsyn, the Nobel Prize-winning author, published in Paris Friday a massive historical expose of the Soviet secret police, prison camp and terror system, called "The Gulag Archipelago, 1918-1956."

Solzhenitsyn's 260,000-word work is so explosive that it may produce a confrontation between the author and the Kremlin. Because of the author's international standing, the account is expected to arouse wide discussion in the West.

"The Gulag Archipelago" is a factual documentary, an "experiment in literary investigation," in the words of the author. It examines in almost infinite detail the total operations and impact of the Soviet apparatus of repression from its inception under Lenin immediately after the revolution of November, 1917, through the ensuing half century.

Although Solzhenitsyn's account formally ends with the situation in 1956, he incorporated in his foreword a direct warning to his contemporary readers that "if freedom does not come to my country for a

Washington — The United States Court of Appeals in Washington ordered that E. Howard Hunt Jr. and Bernard L. Barker be released from prison without bail pending the appeal of their conviction in the Watergate case. (More on Page 3.)

Nixon Signs Manpower Bill
Washington — President Nixon signed into law Manpower legislation giving state and local governments a larger role in determining their need for a variety of employment and training programs. The legislation represents a compromise between the White House and Congress over the need for public service employment and the giving to state and local authorities flexibility in the use of Manpower funds. (More on Page 2.)

Solzhenitsyn's work had circulated for several years but there had been no public information as to its exact contents.

Solzhenitsyn's decision to authorize publication of the book at this time followed a reported incident involving the Soviet Security Police.

Last August, according to a statement issued by Solzhenitsyn, the police arrested a Leningrad woman, Yelizaveta Voronyanskaya, in whose hands the author had placed one copy of "The Gulag Archipelago" for safekeeping.

At the end of nearly 120 hours of continuous questioning, without sleep, worn-down and terrorized, Mrs. Voronyanskaya broke down and revealed the whereabouts of the manuscript Solzhenitsyn had given her. She was released shortly thereafter, returned home and committed suicide.

It was this event that impelled Solzhenitsyn to release his expose for publication in the West.

Solzhenitsyn's book records an unrelieved sequence of horrors, atrocities and inhumanity of man against man. A record which he believes makes that of, for example, the Spanish Inquisition look adolescent.

Never in the history of any land, Solzhenitsyn contends, has any people so suffered at the hands of their government as under the Soviet system. He does not explicitly call for the downfall of the regime but makes clear his opinion that without fundamental change repression of the Soviet people cannot be ended.

Solzhenitsyn presents a detailed statistical comparison between conditions under the czars and in the Soviet Union. In every category — arrests, terms of imprisonment, executions — he finds that the Soviet regime has exceeded czarist rule by a factor ranging from 10 to one to 1,000 to one.

Major Manpower Bill Signed

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Plowing through a stack of legislation sent him by the now-adjoined Congress, President Nixon signed a major manpower bill Friday. The measure turns over to state and local governments the basic job of running $1.65 billion in federally funded programs.

The bill, hailed by Nixon as "one of the finest . . . to come to my desk this year," includes funds that could be used to combat unemployment expected to be spawned by the energy crisis. The manpower bill was the first to be signed by Nixon since he arrived here Wednesday for a holiday working vacation. Later in the day, he signed five other measures and aides said he was reviewing 40 other bills that have reached him since Congress adjourned last weekend.

The President's action ended four years of bickering and bargaining between Congress and the administration over reshaping of manpower programs. Nixon originally sought to incorporate manpower reforms into a special revenue sharing program. Congress resisted, but finally agreed to turn basic responsibility for operating job training and placement programs over to state and local governments. It retained federal oversight on the national level. In a statement issued by the Western White House, Nixon said the legislation ends "the patchwork system of individual rigid categorical manpower programs which began in the early 1960s."

Federal funds will be channeled to states and local communities "without any federal strings as to what kind of services or how much of those services should be provided," Nixon said, adding: The five other measures signed by Nixon Friday were: —The endangered species act, giving the government authority to make early identification of animals threatened with extinction and to act quickly to save them. "The lives will be richer, and America will be more beautiful in the years ahead, thanks to the measure," Nixon said in a statement on signing the bill. —A law allowing nursing homes and similar facilities to obtain government mortgage insurance for fire safety equipment. Nixon said in a statement the legislation was "another important step in our efforts to improve the lives of elderly Americans." —A resolution authorizing the Interior Department to help develop a living memorial in the form of a grove of tree to President Lyndon B. Johnson. The grove would be located at Lady Bird Johnson Park along the Potomac River. —A Senate bill removing out-moded restrictions on the use of barges on inland waterways, and a House measure to remove restrictions on salary changes for full-time referees in bankruptcy.

Still pending on Nixon's desk are such major bills as an 11 per cent increase in social security benefits, an energy-saving nationwide speed limit of 55 miles an hour, the foreign aid and defense appropriations.

Progress Made At Geneva Talks

By The Associated Press
The United Nations announced some headway Friday in the negotiations between Egypt and Israel at Geneva on the separation of forces along the Suez Canal. But a word of dissent came from Libya's Col. Moammar Khadafy to any Arab peace with the Israelis. Khadafy called for a revolution by Arabs to prevent their governments from making peace and suggested the Palestinian guerrillas lead the way. The Egyptian army claimed its forces shot down an Israeli warplane at the southern end of the Suez Canal. The Israeli military command denied it. In Geneva, the U.N. announcement said the Egyptian and Israeli negotiators had agreed on some of the principles to govern the separation of their armies along the Suez Canal. It added: "There was a further frank exchange of views on other principles. Clarifications were sought by both sides regarding details of these principles." The meeting lasted two hours and 10 minutes. Both sides agreed to meet again next Wednesday, after Israel's elections. Khadafy's remarks were made in an interview published Friday by the Lebanese magazine Al

Massa of Beirut. He said the Arab revolution against a peace agreement should be spearheaded by the Palestinian guerrilla movement and proposed that the Palestinians seek alliances with Arab governments that reject peace with Israel. Some Arab analysts in Beirut looked upon Khadafy's comments as an open call for the overthrow of President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, who was the first Arab leader to agree to direct peace talks with the Israelis. Khadafy and Sadat agreed earlier this year to merge their two nations with Syria into a single Arab state. But the merger never came about, because of differing viewpoints between the Egyptian leadership and Khadafy, who heads Libya's government. The right-wing Beirut newspaper Al Jarida said Friday that a Lebanese politician just back from Cairo reported he had learned that pro-Khadafy officers in the Egyptian army had plotted to overthrow Sadat during the final days of the Middle East war, but that their plan was aborted. He added that Khadafy backed the plot.

Cigarette Firm Raises Prices

NEW YORK (AP) — R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., the nation's largest cigarette manufacturer, announced on Friday a wholesale price increase of 15 cents per thousand on all its cigarette brands.

Tremor Shakes W. Coast

COSTA MESA, Calif. (AP) — A small earthquake shook the Orange County coast at 7:30 a.m. Friday not far from where President Nixon is spending a New Year's holiday.

The Caltech Seismological Research Center in Pasadena said the quake registered 3.6 on the Richter scale and was centered on the Newport-Inglewood Fault five miles offshore of Laguna Beach. The Western White House is 10 miles away.

There were no reports of damage.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude. Thus, a reading of 7.5 reflects an earthquake 10 times stronger than one 6.5.

An earthquake of 3.5 on the Richter scale can cause slight damage in the local area, 4 can cause moderate damage, 5 considerable damage and 6 can be severe. A 7 reading is considered a major quake, capable of widespread damage.

Hunt, Barker To Be Freed

Washington (AP) — The U.S. Court of Appeals Friday ordered the release of Watergate conspirators E. Howard Hunt and Bernard L. Barker while their appeals are being considered.

The court held in abeyance the release of three other conspirators, Eugenio R. Martinez, Frank A. Sturgis and Virgilio R. Gonzalez, noting that the parole board has scheduled hearings in their case on Jan. 7.

Hunt, 54, was sentenced Nov. 9 to serve from 2½ to 8 years in prison. He had pleaded guilty last January to six counts of conspiracy, burglary and wiretapping.

Barker was sentenced to a term of 18 months to 6 years the same day on his guilty plea to seven counts.

Hunt has been in the federal prison at Allentown, Pa.

The order by the appeals court specified the two men be released on their own recognizance.

Hunt, a former CIA agent, recruited Barker for the two 1972 break-ins at Democratic Party headquarters in the Watergate Office Building.

Barker, in turn, enlisted Martinez, Sturgis and Gonzalez.

Police surprised Barker, Martinez, Sturgis, Gonzalez along with James W. McCord Jr., inside the party offices early in the morning of June 17. Hunt and G. Gordon Liddy, described as the ringleader, surrendered later.

All but McCord and Liddy pleaded guilty. They later tried to change the plea but were turned down by U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica.

McCord, convicted by a jury, was released pending appeal, after Sirica sentenced him to one to five years. Liddy, also convicted, is serving a contempt sentence for refusing to testify before a grand jury under immunity and a 6 to 20 year term for conspiracy, burglary and wiretapping.

Hunt will return to his home in Potomac, Md., a Washington suburb. Barker will return to his wife in Miami, Fla.

"It's the first good news we've had in a long time," said Daniel E. Schultz, attorney for Barker, Martinez, Sturgis and Gonzalez. "It will hopefully be followed by equally good news on Jan. 7 by the other three men."

Sirica's refusal to allow Hunt and Barker to withdraw their pleas is the basis of their appeals.

Hunt had asked dismissal of all charges on grounds that "governmental misconduct in the investigation and prosecution so outraged due process principles that prosecution must be barred."

"The main defense we'd like to present to the jury is lack of criminal intent," Schultz said, "because they were led to believe they were on a government mission."

Basques Admit Killing Carrero

Bordeaux, France (UPI) — Four hooded men claiming to be Basque separatists told a clandestine news conference Friday they assassinated Spanish Prime Minister Luis Carrero Blanco eight days ago, then escaped to France.

The four, who wore black linen hoods during a 90-minute conference at a secret site south of Bordeaux, gave details of how they allegedly killed Carrero by planting 154 pounds of explosives under his car.

Carrero, 70, his bodyguard and chauffeur were killed Dec. 20 when the blast on a downtown Madrid street hurled their limousine 50 feet into the air.

The four hooded men said they belonged to the nationalist group Basque Homeland and Liberty (ETA). They spoke in Spanish and Basque, using an interpreter to speak to 20 newsmen who wore dark glasses while being driven to the conference site in special cars with darkened windows.

The four men said they alone were responsible for Carrero's death and that none of the suspects named by the Spanish government were involved in the plot.

They said they planted three charges of explosives totaling 99 pounds beneath the street where they expected Carrero's car to pass. Another 55-pound charge was hidden in a small sedan they double parked on the street, forcing Carrero's vehicle to veer into the center of the road directly over the underground explosives.

The charge in the sedan apparently never went off, they said, because they later recognized the car relatively in-act in news photographs of the explosion scene.

The four said after detonating the charges, they left Spain from the south, escaping into Portugal and from there by sea to the French coast near Nantes. They said they intended to return to Spain in the near future.

Venezuela Oil Hike To Slap East Coast

Caracas (UPI) — Venezuela increased the average price of its oil by more than 80% Friday — raising the cost of a barrel to $14.08 — in a move that is expected to hit hard at consumers on the U.S. East Coast.

Government sources said the increase could be expected to lead to higher prices for gasoline and home heating oil in the Atlantic states, for which Venezuela is the largest single source of petroleum.

The increase was the 12th for Venezuela this year, bringing the total price rise to more than 400% since last Jan. 1.

The announcement came less than a week after the Persian Gulf oil producing nations doubled the price of their crude to $11.65 per barrel. But the amount of the increase was a surprise as it had been expected that Venezuela would merely match those increases.

Immediate indications from U.S. and other foreign oil companies operating here were that the increase would largely be passed on to consumers, dollar for dollar.

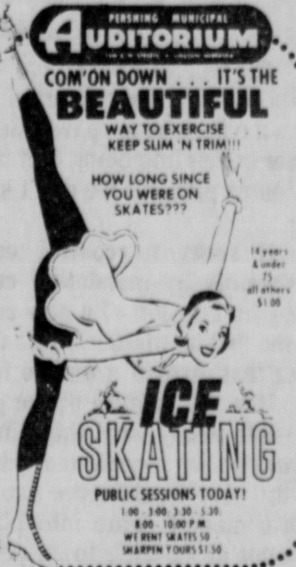

Venezuela, the world's third largest oil exporter after Saudi Arabia and Iran, ships 1.7 million barrels per day of crude and refined oil to the United States out of total exports of 3.1 million barrels daily.

Venezuela's oil production is handled largely by giant firms such as Exxon, Shell, Gulf and Mobil.

The government of President-elect Carlos Andres Perez, who takes office March 11, is now drafting plans to sink the additional income into social and economic development plans.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

The federal government's standby rationing program for gasoline is a unique gimmick in many respects. It is also of such a nature as to spawn the hope among all citizens that it never comes into being. Actually, it is a misnomer to call it a rationing plan but we don't know what other tag to hang on it.

It seeks to control consumption of gasoline, not necessarily by mandatory curtailment of usage, but by a complex infusion of a new economic factor, already known as the "white market." It is this white market feature of the plan that gives it a unique identity.

It is this feature of the plan that makes it literally impossible to say what the ultimate consequences of the plan would be for specific individuals. The only rationing aspect of the plan would serve two purposes — to make sure the white market came into play and to assure a minimum amount of gasoline to all people at a reasonable price.

With the white market, everybody, in effect, would be in the business of retailing of gasoline. You would be a retail buyer or seller as you bought and/or sold coupons good for the purchase of gasoline.

If you used more than your 32 or 35-gallon basic personal allotment, you would have to buy coupons from someone to do it. If you used less than your basic allotment, you could sell the coupons you had left over to someone with a greater need.

The basic allotment per individual driving license-holder would do little more than take care of essential personal needs, such as going to and from work, shopping and other family errands. Traveling for business purposes or a trip of any length for pleasure would be impossible with only your basic ration of gasoline.

To do anything other than essential city driving, you would have to buy coupons on the open market to purchase additional gasoline. A traveling salesman would be buying coupons in wholesale lots, for instance.

Exactly how various individuals would fare under the program will not be known until full details of the system are explained in about two weeks. The basic allocation will be affected by such things as density of population of an area and availability of mass transit.

How all of this might work out if the program were ever implemented is simply impossible to say. It could prove to be a stroke of genius but our guess is that it would prove to be something else.

At least, we would anticipate wholesale grumbling by the vast majority of citizens when they found themselves obliged to buy extra gas coupons in the open market. It would seem that the market price for coupons might be determined by innumerable imponderables.

If enough plain average citizens ended up with coupons to sell, that condition might keep the price down fairly well. But if coupons, for whatever reason, tended to get largely in the hands of a rather few people or places, their price could skyrocket.

In other words, an easy availability of coupons would make them fairly cheap but any scarcity would make them expensive. Presumably, government economists have considered all this and tried to fix the basic allocation at a level that, in the end, would reduce total consumption while maintaining a total price that did not become excessive.

Still, the potential for profiteering in coupons seems at least as great as the profiteering potential for the big oil producers. By far the best hope is that the system never needs to be inaugurated.

Mao Successor Struggle Bringing Militia Increase

PEKING — One of the most significant current developments in Communist China, in the opinions of foreign envoys in Peking, is the move by Mao Tse-tung to reactivate a vast urban militia force.

Such force has long existed in the rural areas, but not since 1968, when China and Russia appeared to be on the brink of war, has the development of a "citizens army" been carried out in the cities on the scale now underway.

Every able-bodied man and woman between the ages of 18 and 35 is obliged to serve in the militia during part of their spare time. This para-military organization is used both as a semi-police force to guard bridges, roads and other strategic points and as a construction and civil works corps.

The recruitment and training of the urban militia has been intensified since October when a call to rebuild the force in the cities came on the 15th anniversary of Mao's original "everyone a soldier" summons.

The official reason given for reactivation of the urban militia is preparedness for the possibility of a Soviet attack against China. However, there is speculation in diplomatic circles in Peking that it may have a political motive.

The possibility is seen that it may be intended as a warning to some of the military leaders and local warlords not to attempt any coups d'etat in the event of the death of Mao, who was 80 on Dec. 26.

Soviet agents are believed to be active in army circles, striving to encourage a Russian-oriented military takeover when Mao ceases to rule.

Mao has also been endeavoring in recent years to re-establish party control over the military, which gained a predominant influence in the local "revolutionary committees" after the army was used to restore order during the chaos and virtual anarchy of the cultural revolution in the late 60s.

Development of a large militia force has long been a source of friction between Communist China's professional army officers and the party hierarchy. The professionals reportedly opposed Mao's repeated calls for a vast citizens' army for two major reasons:

1 — Because they questioned the wisdom of Mao's concept of a defense strategy based on an invading enemy being drowned in what he described as "an ocean of people." They believed that China needed a well trained, highly disciplined and thoroughly modernized army.

2 — Because they resented the fact the militia was under control of the party, and thus, potentially, a rival source of power.

The militia was organized on a large scale during the cultural revolution. Opposition to its build-up at that time reportedly cost the then chief of the general staff, General Lu Jiaochang, his job.

It reached its greatest strength during the Sino-Soviet war scare in 1968, when it was estimated to number nearly seven million men and women — mostly peasants and students. It was later gradually reduced and many of its units disbanded.

The new move to rebuild its strength is seen as an indication that radical elements in the Chinese Communist party may be gaining ground in what already appears to be the beginning of a successionist struggle.

Operation Candor, Where Are You?

The Washington Post Friday hinted of another "bombshell" event related to the Watergate scandals which could render President Nixon's Operation Candor "inoperative" and could move heretofore hesitant Republican politicians closer to demanding impeachment or resignation.

According to the Post, sources close to the White House say that the President is reluctant to make public certain tapes and records relating to post-Watergate break-in conversations because he feels that many people will interpret them as meaning that Nixon knew about the Watergate cover-up effort before the time he has previously acknowledged.

Other pro-White House spokesmen say, however, that Nixon wants to keep the material close to his vest as part of the effort to blunt the Ervin Committee's legal attempts to obtain it — which the White House sees as erosion of the separation of powers.

Whatever the reason, President Nixon will suffer a new confidence crisis if he continues to hang a curtain of secrecy around pertinent evidence. He has promised to make a full disclosure of his part in the Watergate and related scandals, but as the year draws to an end, Operation Candor is a dimming memory and the penchant for secrecy apparently is in control.

It is plain, however, that the President should have more to fear from denying the publicizing of those materials than would be the case if they were released and possibly misinterpreted.

The failure to make those promised disclosures will heighten impeachment or resignation pressures from Democrats and from Republicans who face re-election campaigns in the next few months and who will go back to Washington after the holidays in no mood to defend against another Watergate bombshell.

Support for the President is faltering and its collapse with the dawn of an election year is a near certainty unless Nixon takes the offensive and spells out his side of the story in detail.

County Parking Lot

The City-County Planning Commission's denial recommendation this week of the Lancaster County Board's request to improve an employee parking lot south of the County-City Building did not mean that the commission opposes the parking lot.

The negative recommendation reflected the commission's belief that governments should adhere to the same criteria demanded of private developers and that such improvements should enhance rather than detract from the building's setting.

In taking action, the commission agreed with the planning department's recommendation for landscaping, screening and tree-planting in the parking lot — conditions which are often demanded of private developers seeking special permits — and took note of a consulting firm's observation that the County-City Building is an important visual marker and entryway to the downtown area and thus any improvements made relating to the building should enhance and not detract from the complex's visual impact upon passersby.

The county should be agreeable to the guidelines for making the parking lot a permanent facility which were suggested by the planning department and the commission. Government should adopt the same criteria demanded of private interests and the board should be taking steps to make the building's setting as attractive as possible.

JAMES RESTON

The Economic Warriors

NEW YORK — It is a common habit with nations that they seldom think much about economic warfare until it is turned against them. This is a subject worth thinking about some night if you run out of heating oil or gas, and it is certainly a topic that will have to be considered in the forthcoming talks on world trade.

The fundamental right of all peoples to trade freely for the products essential to their normal lives has long been defended by philosophers and even politicians when one or two of them have gathered together to discuss the folly of the human race, but the practice of limiting trade in peacetime for political purposes goes on.

Also, it is generally a popular practice, particularly here in the United States, which has been an effective pioneer in the development of economic warfare in this century, but which is now outraged when the oil-producing Arab states turn the practice on us.

This doesn't make the practice of economic blackmail and price-gouging any better. In fact, the more all nations rely in an increasingly interdependent world on imported products essential to their well-being, the more intolerable peacetime economic warfare becomes, but maybe the major industrial states had to suffer from the oil embargo in order to do something about the practice.

The conditions of open military warfare between nations are obviously different. Nobody is arguing that it was wrong for the allies to try to deny the Germans in the last two world wars the raw materials

Germany imported from abroad in order to keep its war machine going.

Horror for that matter, despite the horrors of the submarine war, that the Germans should not have tried to prevent American war supplies from getting to Britain. Stupendous human cruelties were inflicted on the civilian populations on both sides as a result, and even then it was denounced as a form of barbarism.

How to regulate the use of economic power for political ends in peacetime is even more difficult, especially when it is hard to distinguish these days between war and peace, and between trade competition and outright economic warfare.

Some forms of trade restriction are obvious and justifiable. Israel and the Arab states might feel that they needed atomic weapons to defend themselves against one another, but they do not expect the United States or the Soviet Union to sell them any such weapons as a right of free trade.

Nor would it be reasonable for the Soviet Union to complain that the United States was refusing to sell its most advanced computers to Moscow, though even this restriction is already getting a little out of date as Germany, Japan, and the other industrial nations sell their computers and other advanced technology to the U.S.S.R.

Short of this, however, there are more practical questions. Was the United States justified in its economic sanctions against Chile because Chile's socialist government expropriated

United-States-owned copper mines and other American properties, and followed an ideology Washington didn't like?

President Kennedy's blockade of Cuba, when the Soviet Union put missiles there that could hit the United States, had the overwhelming support of the American people, but should the U.S. embargo on selling non-military goods to Cuba be continued a decade after the missile crisis? Again, most people in this country would undoubtedly say yes, and here is just the problem. For if it is the policy of the United States to deny its commerce to Cuba because Cuba is taking hostile attitudes towards the United States, how are we to persuade the Arabs that it is wrong to embargo oil to the United States, whose arms shipments to Israel are regarded as hostile to the interests of the Arabs?

This is not of course an accurate analogy, but the Arabs don't see it that way. Neither do many other underdeveloped nations who have been selling essential raw materials to the West usually at prices controlled by the advanced nations of the world.

All analogies from the past are changing, however, as the world changes. The United States itself — as the oil embargo has shown — is increasingly dependent on foreign imports. Some 12% of the raw materials

JOHN STEWART

They Had A Dream

John Stewart founded the first Methodist mission in America. He built a log meeting house near Upper Sandusky, Ohio, in 1816 to bring Christianity to the Wyandot Indians.

Stewart's success among the Indians led to the formation three years later of the Methodist Missionary Society and to the recognition of him as the "father" of all Methodist missions.

Raised a Baptist, Stewart was a humble, poorly educated man who turned from a life as an alcoholic to carry the word of God into the wilderness.

Stewart was born of free parents in Powhatan County, Va., probably in the last decade of the 18th Century. His brother was a Baptist preacher.

He was skimpily educated in a country school and worked as a dyer in his early years.

Stewart was ill and stayed behind when his parents moved west to Tennessee, but when he recovered he set out to join them.

It was this journey which led Stewart into service as a missionary. He was robbed on the way and in a fit of despondency settled in Marietta, Ohio, and drowned his sorrows in drink.

After repeated attempts to quit drinking, Stewart was converted to Methodism at a prayer meeting and became a sober and fervent Christian.

He was praying in the fields one day when he said he heard voices telling him to "declare My counsel." Moved by the experience, Stewart strapped a knapsack on his back and struck out through the woods and across rivers to the Northwest.

He stopped briefly and preached to the Delaware Indians but the voices exhorted him to push farther north.

In October, 1816, Stewart arrived in the territory of the Wyandots. An Indian agent, who at first thought Stewart was a runaway slave, sent him to a man named Jonathan Pointer.

A Negro, Pointer had been abducted as a boy and raised by the Wyandots. Reluctantly, he agreed to serve as Stewart's interpreter.

Slowly Stewart gained the trust and respect of the Indians and converted many of them to Christianity. He was a forceful preacher, and a gifted singer which delighted the Indians.

He had been given an "exhorter's license," but his work was independent of the church until 1818 when the Methodist Quarterly Conference met near Urbana, Ill., and granted him a preacher's license.

After that, the church gave him financial support and 53 acres of land on which he built his home. Stewart married a mulatto girl named Polly in 1820. He died three years later, telling her and the Indian chiefs at his bedside to "Be faithful."

In 1960, the Methodist General Conference designated the Wyandot Mission he founded as a Methodist Shrine. His grave is on the mission grounds.

Letters To The Editor

Brevity in letters is requested but length in itself will have no bearing on publication. Writers are advised that needless details and repetitious matter will be edited out of letters. Too frequent contributions from one person on the same subject may be rejected. All letters must be accompanied by the writer's true name but may be submitted for publication under a pen name or initials. However, letters will be printed under a pen name or initials at the editor's discretion.

'Doctor' Title

Omaha, Neb. It is laughable to see how some individuals enjoy being called "doctor" when the title has not been earned. An earned doctorate implies formal schooling in the disciplines of the individual's specialty in sufficient amount to warrant the label of "expert" in the corresponding area.

The ludicrous handle of "doctor" carried by some, mostly preachers, has been made available to these individuals through the "generosity" of some school or church which looked upon them as prospective benefactors (financially or politically).

While it is a travesty and an insult to the intelligence of the bonafide degree-holder, the egomaniac feeds on the appellation and uses the title in the furtherance of his cause. His ego becomes inflated in the belief that he is putting one over on the average citizen. And he probably does fool some of the people some of the time. He cannot, however, fool the discerning, intelligent person who looks upon the phony as a ridiculous spectacle.

In the interest of everyone concerned, it behooves the public and the news media not to fall into the category of title gullibility. A quack is weeded out of the ranks of the medical fraternity in a hurry. Why not expose the sham of other misrepresentations?

Blurred Image

Lincoln, Neb. The letter "One Promise" in the Dec. 19 Star and signed "Impeach and Convict The President" is another incident that shows the unfairness of the news media. Such letters should bear the writer's name or not be printed. The public has a right to know from whence comes this volume of propaganda.

This letter sounds like one of our professors or the commentators whose comments fill the air waves and newspapers. All showing their hatred of the President. By mere volume and repetition tending to confuse the unthinking and obscure the fact that these are the same people who for years have been giving aid and comfort to our enemies.

The writer of the letter says or implies that Nixon is like Hitler. If this were true, there would have been no Sam Irvin show and no newspaper would have printed the letter in question, signed or not. Nixon is more like Churchill who for years warned his countrymen about Hitler just as Nixon for years has been warning us about a country whose every act has shown it to be as ruthless as Hitler and has publicly said it would bury us.

One can see that the theory of "cognitive dissonance" mentioned in this letter might be valid where one's belief in the supernatural were in conflict with his reason. And this to a large extent is our country's

Area Entertainment At A Glance

To assist area residents in keeping abreast of current and future entertainment and cultural events, The Lincoln Star again has compiled a listing of functions which will be presented in the Lincoln-Omaha area through May.

Although the calendar is not a review of all entertainment activities, its purpose is to highlight the major events taking place in the next five months.

In addition, the Star's weekly "Footlights and Candles" column will supplement the calendar with details of these and other area activities as they occur.

'Fat Farms' Are Great — If You Can Afford Them

By LIZA BERCOVICI
(c) 1973 New York Times

Escondido, Calif. — Maurice Stans paused in his walk, gasped slightly for breath, and squinted into the early afternoon sun. "It's a great experience to drop everything and take inventory," he said.

Stans, a former Secretary of Commerce, has been spending the better part of the afternoon hiking up a deserted country road in this southeastern portion of the state. The hiking is part of the strict regimen of physical exercise enforced by the Golden Door, one of the country's better known "fat farms." For the past week Stans and his wife Kathleen had been in attendance at the Golden Door, though not with the intention of losing weight. Simply to stay in shape. "I don't need to lose weight," he said insistently several times. "I have already lost three pounds without straining."

Now, Stans was a little tired, the car which had been promised to come and fetch him was nowhere in sight, and the afternoon dust was beginning to settle. Across the road, a black Labrador retriever of unknown potential looked like it was considering mounting an attack.

Stans rubbed his chin reflectively. "And I still have to shave before I take my 2 p.m. facial," he sighed.

Among connoisseurs of "fat farms," there are only three in North America worth wasting breath on: Neiman-Marcus's Greenhouse in Dallas, Tex.; Elizabeth Arden's Maine Chance in Scottsdale, Ariz.; and the Golden Door of Escondido, Calif. The Golden Door is the smallest of the three and the only one admitting men. Devotees, including Stans, say it is also the superior of the three.

The fat farm is a glossy establishment nestling against 12 acres of softly-rounder hills north and east of San Diego. The spa admits only 20 customers at a time, and since 1959, when it opened its single brass door, it has been performing a thriving business excising lard and restoring shape to the figures of the prominent, the powerful and the beautiful. Owner-manager Deborah Szekely Mazzanti, a bouncy, gray-haired lady, describes it this way. "We are the ones that get the governors' wives and the senators' wives and the cabinet secretaries' wives, it doesn't matter what the administration," she says matter-of-factly.

Basic beauty training consists of an intensive round of gymnastics, swims, hikes, volleyball games, facials, herbals (guests are wrapped in sheets cooked in eucalyptus leaves to release tension) and massages. The day starts at 6:20 a.m., when they are awakened by the yodeling of the Swiss-born director, Ellen Roy, to go on an early morning hike. From then on, customers are pummeled, pounded, steamed, stunted, and worked over by the spa's 60 employees. Most guests, who normally come for a week's stay, are also kept to a stiff 850-calorie-a-day diet.

Critics say the Golden Door is the most uppy of the spas. Mrs. Mazzanti insists it merely enforces the most vigorous physical regimen. "Maine Chance is mainly old ladies," she says curtly. "And the Texas ladies don't go to the Greenhouse. They come here, because they want to work."

Now, the Golden Door is attempting something unusual.

It has inaugurated couples week. Most of the year is intended exclusively for women. Then, for eight weeks every year, it turns around and becomes the country's only all-male spa, a venture which has proved, to the surprise of most, to be successful financially. Still, the 1970's are upon us, and most of the customers are solid and respectable. In the opinion of Mrs. Mazzanti, it was time to venture into the world of co-educational beauty training. Eleven married couples, including the Stanses and "all millionaires" according to one guest, inaugurated the session.

Then the Menninger Foundation, one of the country's leading psychiatric clinics, was invited to offer their regular program of seminars in human psychology. For the past 20 years, Menninger has been giving seminars in such subjects as child development, retirement and alcoholism to high-level business executives. Normally these seminars are given at the foundation's headquarters in Topeka, Kan. But the Menninger doctors liked the idea of combining strenuous physical exercise such as that provided by the Golden Door with the mental stimulation of the seminars. "We were instantly receptive to the invitation," said psychiatrist, Dr. Herbert Klemme.

In order to fit everything in, the spa trimmed its exercise classes and squeezed in the lectures. They also boosted the cost of a week — from $850 per person to $2,000 per couple.

The Menninger lectures are not intended as therapy, but they sometimes work out that way. "Our customers' secret expect-tations are better manipulation of their employees but what they really need to understand better is themselves," Klemme said. One guest, Mrs. Dorothy Sampson, said, "We've all been able to cope successfully with life, but we all have problems. We're all searching for answers." Mrs. Sampson, the wife of a retired manufacturer of prefabricated homes, indicated that some guests did air personal problems in the workshops that follow the lectures. One couple had a seven-year stint with drug-addicted children. Another had an alcoholic in the family. Most guests said simply that the combination of becoming wiser and thinner at the same time was too difficult to resist.

Roderick McPhee, president of Punahou, the country's largest (3,700 students) private school, said he came because as head of a large school, he is like the executive of a large organization and a refresher course in psychology is always useful. "Besides," he added, "there's always been this mystique about Menninger's."

One person said she was exhausted by the regimen. "By Tuesday, everybody was laying their heads on the table, fighting to stay awake," Mrs. Sampson said.

Stans denied that he had come because of personal problems. But he said the question of retirement had interested him because "I am at that process of adjustment now."

"We're not here as psychotics," he said briefly. "We're here as interested people in the psychology of life."

Go See A Doctor And Take Clarence Along

DEAR ABBY: My husband, Clarence, became a Christian two years ago, which pleased me because I was already one. A preacher named Orville has influenced Clarence greatly, but I can't go along with some of the things Orville has taught him.

For instance, he says no Christian would own a TV, attend a movie, or allow his children to dance or attend school sports. He also says Christian women don't cut their hair or use any kind of beautifying things.

Clarence had a dream that he was speaking from the pulpit, and Orville said that dream was a "vision" in which God was calling Clarence to preach, so now Clarence plans to preach.

One night last week Clarence said he had a dream that we were getting our tobacco crop ready to sell and some unbelievers kept hiding bad tobacco in our good tobacco, so Clarence decided it was a message from God to get rid of our TV, so he took it out in the back and burned it up.

I am torn to pieces over this. Our four preschool children are becoming very nervous. Why don't I leave him? I love him. And I know he loves me and he children. I have been praying for guidance, but am getting no answers. Can you help me?

DEAR LOST: I think you should see your doctor and tell him what you have told me. And take Clarence with you. If you could get Orville to go along, it might give the doctor a clue as to what you are up against.

DEAR ABBY: I am 38, but I'm told I look about 25. I've had two marriages. Both were failures for the same reason: I picked losers and tried to help them. I've always held good jobs and worked hard and practically supported both these guys, and got nothing but a kick in the rear.

Now I finally met a man who is hard working and successful, and HE wants to marry ME! He bends over backwards trying to be nice to me, and it's a whole new ball game for me. He says he loves me, and I know I love him. I can't believe it. The only catch is that he is 32. He has been married and has two children. I am worried about the age difference between us. He says he's always been "old" for his age, and my being older doesn't bother him because I look and act younger.

What do you think I should do?

FAITHFUL READER

dear abby

DEAR FAITHFUL: I think you should grab him.

DEAR ABBY: Please settle an argument I am having with my husband since we visited his sister and brother in law last week.

I refuse to go to their home again: They have three dogs and six cats which they keep locked up in their house all day, and when you walk into their home the smell could knock you dead. I might add, that both the sister and her husband are chain smokers and neither my husband nor I smoke. So between the animal odors and the smoke, I was ready to keel over.

At dinner, the animals were fed from the same plates we were using. I objected, but was told: "What's the difference? All the dishes go into the dishwasher." This turned my stomach.

I told my husband I wasn't going to visit them again. He said: "They'll be hurt."

WHAT DO YOU SAY?

NAMELESS

DEAR NAMELESS: I say, I don't blame you. If your husband has the stomach for a return visit to his sister's house, kiss him goodbye and ask him to please fumigate his clothes before he comes home.

DEAR ABBY: Please help me before I go completely out of my mind. I work for this doctor. He's a good one and I love my work, but I never have any time to myself.

The doctor and his wife are friendly with my husband and me, but they are too friendly. We live in a small town, and his car is parked in front of my house at lunch hour and my days off, too, and I just don't like the way it looks.

If the doctor isn't here, he has me tied up on the phone for long periods talking about this or that at the clinic or hospital.

I have my own work to do at home, and I'm always behind with it. My husband and I have other friends, but we can't plan anything without this doctor and his wife, as they pop in without even calling.

I'm afraid to relax in anything but my uniform at home because he even comes in without knocking. What can I do? My husband says he is just being friendly. I like friends, too, but I'd also like to forget about sick people, pregnant women, etc., when I have some time off. I've even considered quitting, but I do like my job.

TIRE OF PRETENDING
DEAR TIRE: If you do not tell the doctor that you can no longer be available after working hours because you have other responsibilities, you may have to quit your job. Your pretended 24-hour-availability has put you in a bind.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 30-year-old woman whose mother tells her she is "blockheaded and stubborn" because she refuses to try to make friends with a large dog that attacked her two years ago.

Being attacked by this dog was a traumatic experience for me. I can still remember the bleeding teeth marks on my wrist, and the large scar on my leg which took a year to heal.

My mother claims that this dog is friendly to anyone who isn't afraid of him, so I should pet him through the fence to make friends with him, and act like I am not afraid of him. I claim that under the circumstances it is normal for me to be afraid, and even foolish to be otherwise.

This dog was trained as a watchdog. Am I being stubborn?

J.W.
DEAR J.W.: Yes. But intelligently so. They say, every dog is entitled to one bite. And that dog has had his.

Senators Eye Variety Of Bills

By CHARLES E. WIESER
United Press International

About a decade ago, most everyone scoffed when former State Sen. T. C. Reeves of Central City seriously proposed in a bill that a warning label be placed on cigarette packages advising smokers that smoking was injurious to health.

He didn't get very far, but as it turned out was only a little ahead of his time. A couple of years later, such warnings were demanded under federal law.

Proposed bills or rules dealing with smoking still pop up occasionally, and the 1974 session of the Legislature will be confronted with still another measure.

It will be authored by Sen. Shirley Marsh of Lincoln, who said she will attempt to restrict smoking "in certain public places." She is among those who believe they should not have to tolerate smoke-befouled air at almost every turn.

Forerunner
Early in the 1973 session, Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha touched off quite a debate when he suggested that smoking be outlawed in the Unicameral chamber. His proposed rule change was turned down but it wouldn't be surprising if the arguments used then will be dusted off when Mrs. Marsh brings in her bill.

What can be expected in the way of major proposals during the 60-day session starting Jan. 1? That question was asked in a recent poll of the lawmakers by United Press International, and a wide variety of answers was received.

To be sure, taxes, school aid, penal reform and the energy crisis were mentioned most frequently as topics certain to generate extended debate. But many of the lawmakers are also drafting bills which will deal with a broad range of other subjects.

Sen. Herb Nore of Genoa, however, is not among them.

'Superfluous Bills'
"Our big problem is too many superfluous bills," he said. "This session should deal primarily with budgeting as was intended when we changed to annual sessions."

And Sen. Roland Luedtke of Lincoln responded that he has been so busy "chairing the Judiciary Committee's interim work, I have had little time to consider my own bills, if any." Among topics delved into by his study unit between sessions was penal reform, which is shaping up as one of the major issues the legislators will tackle.

Walshill Sen. Blair K. Richendier plans to sponsor bills to reduce the number of license plates from two to one for each vehicle, lower the compulsory education age from 16 to 14, and license auto repair shops.

"I am drafting legislation to take up some lag in the time between occupancy of new construction and when schools and other government subdivisions collect taxes on it," Sen. James Dickinson of Omaha said.

Sen. Jerry Stromer of Kearney plans to sponsor a partisan Legislature bill, and Sen. Robert Clark of Sidney will come in with "a new bill for telecommunications to consolidate the radio systems of the state of Nebraska."

Tax Rewriting
Scottsbluff lawmaker Terry Carpenter said he plans to propose a different method of dealing with real estate taxes on homes owned by those 65 and older.

Here's a further rundown on what some of the other senators say they will introduce:

Loran C. Schmit of Bellwood: A bill providing for a Nebraska Institute of Health and Science, financed by a special tax whose proceeds would be earmarked for this specific purpose.

Richard M. Fellman of Omaha: Election reform, divorce law reform, repeal of the food tax, and repeal of the constitutional limitation on legislative salaries.

Ramey C. Whitney of Chappell: A uniform retirement program bill "if the retirement committee has time to prepare it."

Ralph D. Kelly of Grand Island: A standard campaign expense reporting system bill and another one to revamp the child support payment system.

Sales Tax Credit
Richard Marsh of Milligan: A measure to increase the food sales tax credit from $10 to $12 and a second bill to permit transbasin water diversion on a project by project basis.

John DeCamp of Neligh: Legislation making more equitable the handling of school lands and funds.

Gary L. Anderson of Axtell: "I do not yet have my legislative package put together, although I do plan to introduce a bill which will require per capita income to be considered along with mill levies in any school aid equalization formula."

John J. Cavanaugh of Omaha: Bills relating to the maintenance and disclosure of criminal records and juvenile records and requiring complete disclosure of fees received by registered Nebraska lobbyists.

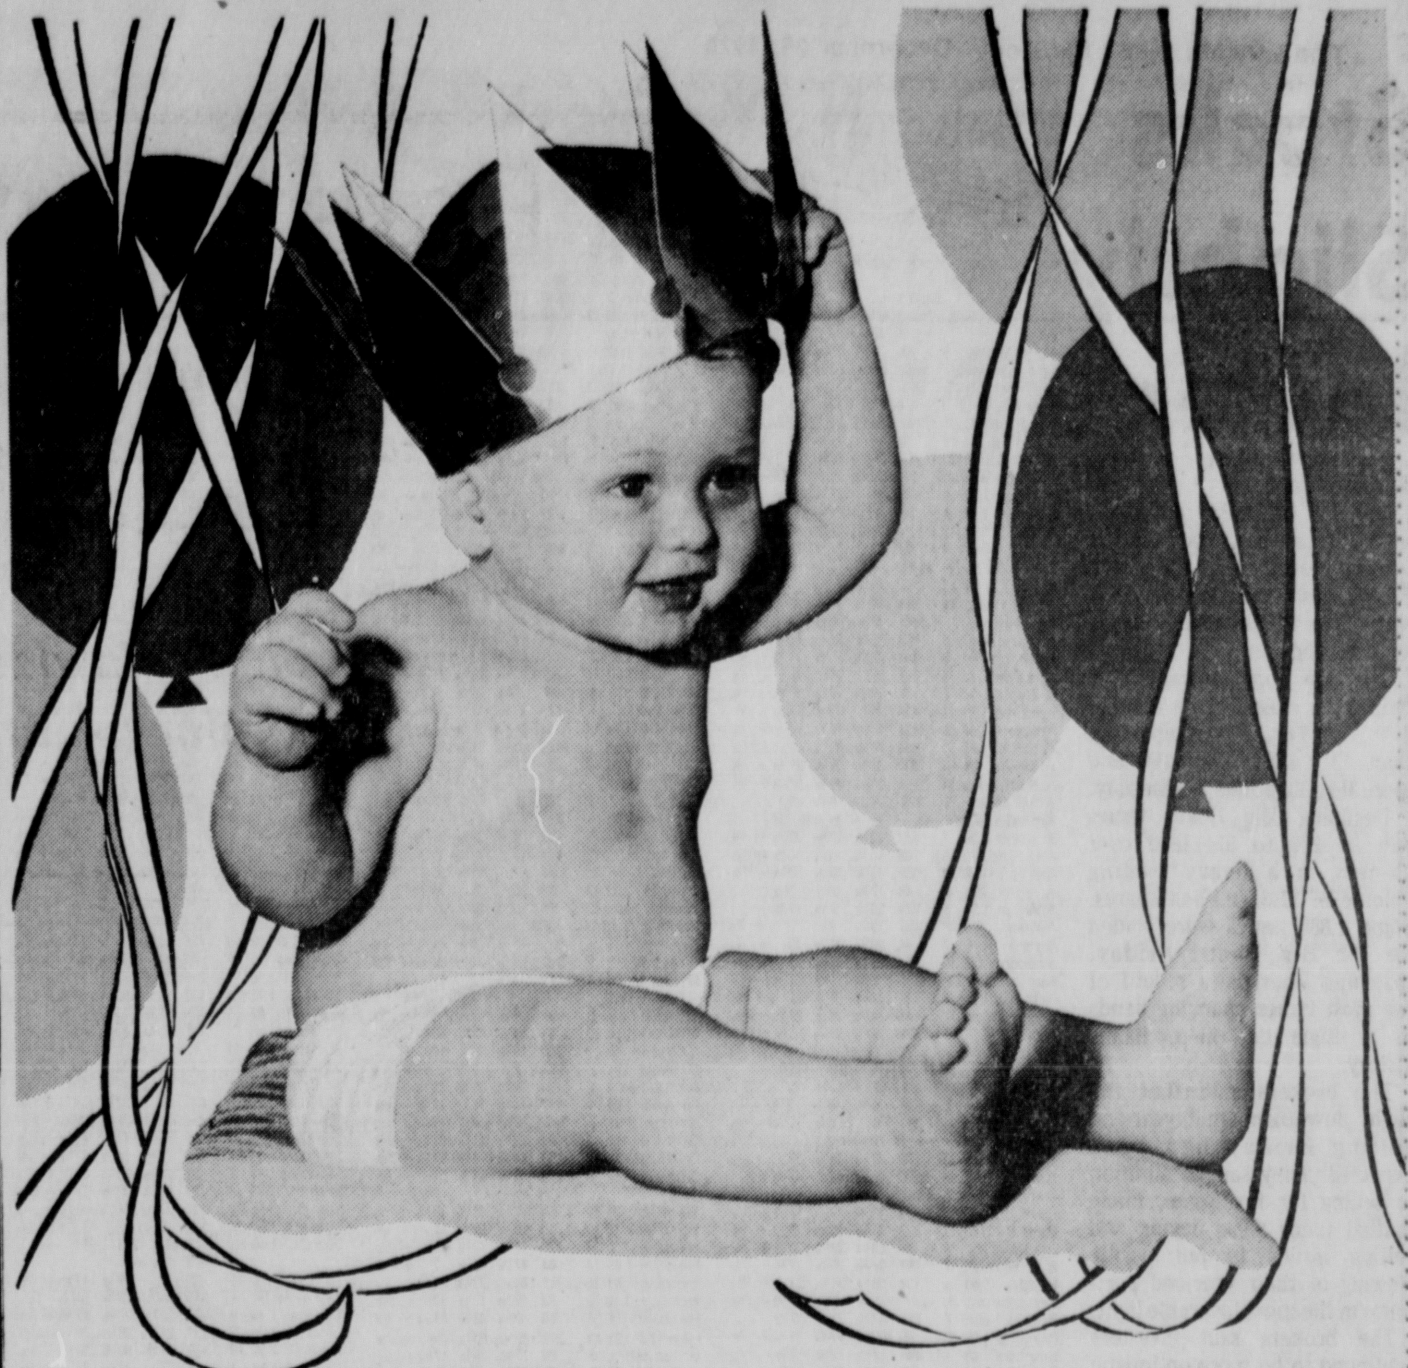

Sen. Fred W. Carstens of Beatrice: said he has no plans for major legislation because "we already have too much pending."

Former Speaker William Hasebrook of West Point: said: "I hope the introduction of bills will be restrained."

Sherman Field Tree Burning Set For Jan. 6

Lincoln residents are invited to take their Christmas trees and greens to the Sherman Field parking lot, 2nd and South Sts., at 7 p.m. on Jan. 6, to be burned in the traditional 12th night of Christmas Epiphany ceremony.

The Park and Recreation Department, which co-sponsors the ceremony with the Fire Department, announced that it cannot use the trees to feed zoo animals because of the chemicals on them, and that it has enough wood chips for Wilderness Park trails.

When he stops being cute

This is his very first New Year. He's celebrating it in his own talented fashion, just being cute.

Last year thousands of boys and girls were arrested. They had all been cute—once!

But did they have the priceless example of active Christian parents? Were they given moral and spiritual training in the Church? Did they grow up in a Christian atmosphere?

This young fellow can't be absolutely sure that the New Year is worth celebrating. His future is in the hands of his parents. But he's smiling because of his confidence in them.

During this New Year their faith in God, and the sincerity of their relationship with the Church will begin to determine just what their son is going to be when he stops being cute.

Frontier Says Cuts Won't Be Necessary

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Frontier Airlines said Friday that revised jet fuel allocations above previously proposed levels will allow the carrier to avoid further substantial schedule cutbacks and personnel layoffs planned for Feb. 1.

The revised fuel allocations announced by Federal Energy Office Administrator William Simon will permit Frontier to continue flying the reduced schedule it put into effect Dec. 8 without additional substantial reductions and without furloughing over 400 personnel, a spokesman for Frontier said.

Frontier said it will still face the day to day issue of fuel availability from individual suppliers and their willingness to respond to directives from the FEO.

Frontier said some adjustments to the airline's schedules involving reductions in competitive markets and normal seasonal changes will be made early in 1974.

Another NWU Sorority Maybe Hit By Burglars

A third Nebraska Wesleyan University sorority has apparently been burglarized, according to police reports Friday.

Police said a burglar or burglars apparently forced open a basement window, tried to force open two vending machines and ransacked rooms at the Alpha Gamma Delta Sorority at 2541 N. 50th.

Police said the loss cannot be determined until residents of the sorority return from the holiday vacation.

The apparent burglary is similar to two reported earlier this week at the Willard and Delta Zeta sororities.

Stocks Slightly Lower

New York (AP) — Under pressure from heavy year-end selling for tax losses and portfolio adjustments, stock market prices closed slightly down Friday, despite a continuance of some favorable economic news, brokers said.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials closed down a small 2.99 to 848.02. It was up more than 13 points Thursday and more than 22 points Wednesday.

Declining Big Board issues had an 976 to 674 lead over gainers in a heavy trading volume of 21.31 million shares. Some 1,885 issues were traded on the Big Board Friday, matching Thursday's record of the most issues changing hands in a single day in exchange history.

The brokers said that the slight downturn amid year-end selling Friday had been expected. They said in addition to selling for tax losses, many mutual funds were buying and selling issues to put public viewing of their year-end portfolios in the most favorable light.

The brokers said investors continued to be more optimistic in light of better recent news about oil and Mideast negotiations.

Other Big Board volume leaders included Transam Corp., off 1/2 to 8 1/2, and Gulf, up 1/2 to 23, with international oils in general.

Occidental Petroleum was off 1/2 to 8 1/2. The Securities and Exchange Commission announced Thursday that it had charged the company and its chairman, Armand Hammer, with defrauding the public through sales of securities. The company and Hammer agreed to a consent decree.

Prudential American Stock Exchange, Prudential Building & Maintenance was the volume leader, off 1/4 to 4 1/4.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average of 30 issues closed down 10.57 to 848.02, as the market's average volume was up 89 to 21.31 million shares.

The NASDAQ composite index of the over-the-counter market was up 43 to 91.

Pair Seized In Chicago Linked To Two Murders

Chicago (UPI) — Two men stopped for making a wrong turn were linked by a stolen truck and blood-stained clothing Friday to the abduction and slaying of two Wyoming men who offered a friendly lift to strangers.

U.S. Magistrate James T. Balog ordered the suspects, William E. Coleman, 20, of Fort Worth, Tex., and Billie J. Cloman, 18, of Portland, Ore., held on $1 million bond each on technical charges of transporting a stolen vehicle across state lines.

Laramie County (Wyo.) Atty. Thomas J. Carroll said Coleman and Cloman were being charged with two counts of first degree murder each in the slaying of rancher Lloyd Witt, 64, and Ray Davis, 57, both of Burns, Wyo. Authorities here said earlier the men faced possible questioning in the slaying of a Denver policeman, but officials in Colorado said they had been ruled out as suspects in that killing.

Found In Snowdrift
The bodies of Witt and Davis were found Friday in a blood-spattered snowdrift off Interstate 80 about 10 miles east of Cheyenne by neighbors who had organized a search party.

Laramie County Coroner Arling Wiederspahn scheduled an autopsy to determine the cause of death. "The bodies were frozen and it's difficult at this time to tell about wounds," he said.

Carroll said he would seek the death penalty. Wyoming law permits imposition of the death penalty if murder is committed in the course of a kidnapping.

Arrested At Corner
Coleman and Cloman were arrested at an intersection here Thursday night and charged with a traffic violation and possession of drugs. Later a state charge of possession of a stolen vehicle across state lines was filed against them.

The youths — wearing white jail suits, their hair in clusters of tiny braids — laughed as Balog asked them if they could afford a lawyer. The magistrate set a hearing for Jan. 3.

1:15 a.m. Thursday. Witt and Davis planned to drive the strangers 20 miles to a point near Cheyenne and return at once, Mrs. Witt said.

"They (the strangers) were just frozen to death," Mrs. Witt said. "Their feet were so wet, they were so cold, we just let them in."

Possibly Seen Near Lincoln
Witt's 1969 model pickup truck later was reported seen at various times near La Grange, Wyo., Harrisburg, Neb., and possibly near Lincoln, Neb.

Authorities said two policemen stopped the pickup truck on Chicago's Southwest Side Thursday night for making an improper turn. The men were charged with the traffic violation and with possession of a controlled substance, drugs.

The patrolmen noticed that the description on the driver's license did not match the driver's physical appearance. Police checked the license plate of the truck and learned it belonged to Witt.

Investigators said that clothing, including a pair of black pants with apparent blood stains, was found in the truck.

Quake Reported
Washington (UPI) — The U.S. Geological Survey reported a second major earthquake in the New Hebrides Islands in the South Pacific but said there were no reports of injury or damage.

Lofgreen Urges Regional Jails

By The Associated Press
Dee Lofgreen of the State Crime Commission said Friday that a statewide master plan for regional jails should be developed.

He said the regional jails could be used for work release and other correctional programs.

Police in Wyoming and Nebraska had been searching for the men since they disappeared early Thursday with two men who came to Witt's service station and asked for help, saying their car had broken down.

Sheriff Harold Conine of Laramie County, Wyo., quoted Witt's wife as saying the four men left the Witts' home about

Vetoed 1973 School Aid Bill Apparently Not Totally Dead

By DON BEMAN
United Press International
During this year's session of the Unicameral, Gov. J. J. Exon successfully vetoed, or thought he did, a bill which would provide $150 million a year in local school aid.

"I thought it was dead," said Vince Brown, clerk of the Legislature.

But an attorney general's opinion released Friday held out the possibility that the bill in question, LB472, may still have enough potential life when the lawmakers convene Jan. 1, 1974, to haunt the governor.

Although not directly addressing LB472, Gerald Vitamvas, deputy attorney general, said any bill under consideration on the final day of a session in an odd-numbered year is carried over to the next session.

Provision Cited
As his basis, Vitamvas cited the constitutional provision approved by the voters when they adopted the concept of annual sessions.

The provision says:
"Bills and resolutions under consideration by the Legislature upon adjournment of a regular session held in an odd-numbered year may be considered at the next regular session as if there has been no adjournment."

Technically, the 1974 session is considered only a continuation of the 1973 session.

The bill in question was returned by the governor and on the final day of the session the lawmakers considered the question of an override. Two different attempts failed.

'Next Legislative Day'
But Brown said under legislative rules, reconsideration motions may be made either on the same day an override attempt fails or "the next legislative day."

Under the terms of the constitution that next legislative day, in the case of LB472, would be Jan. 1, 1974.

Once the motion is made, Brown said, it need not be voted on that very day. If such a motion is made, he said the lawmakers would have five days in which to act.

Vitamvas, however, said his opinion was based on a strictly hypothetical case since he did not consider all of the facts involved in the case of LB472.

Beyond his opinion, Vitamvas said it would be up to the Legislature to apply and interpret its own rules to determine the life potential for LB472.

Shift To State
The aid bill was the product of Waverly Sen. Jerome Warner's interim study committee, which worked between the 1972 and 1973 sessions. The measure, in short, would shift half the operational costs of local schools, or about $150 million a year, over to the state.

The state currently provides $55 million a year in local school aid, which this year includes $20 million in state revenue sharing money.

Previously, the Legislature appropriated only $35 million a year.

Stromer Not Yet Ready To Announce Decision

Kearney (UPI) — State Sen. Gerald Stromer of Kearney said Friday he would be announcing his decision on whether to seek the congressional seat being vacated by Rep. Dave Martin, R-Neb., within two weeks.

Stromer said in a prepared statement that "if I become a candidate, it will be to continue the best traditions of Dave Martin."

Martin, according to Stromer,

$20 Million Bond Issue Signed To Finance State Office Building

With the signing of a $20 million bond issue Friday, the new State Office Building is another step closer to becoming a reality.

City and state officials, investment bankers, bond and general legal counsels gathered in the First National Bank board room to sign the papers that give the city ownership of the proposed building between L and M, 14th and 15th, with adjacent parking lots.

The state in turn will lease the building from the city until the bonds are repaid with revenue from cigarette tax funds.

Although the building has been six years in the planning,

Gov. J. James Exon commented that "waiting to this time saved the taxpayers a great deal of money." The less than 5% interest rate is favorable to the taxpayer.

The proposed building, projected for completion in 1976, will be the largest office building in the city.

Name Is Taken Off Fatality List

By Associated Press
The name of Valjean L. Manley, 28, Steele City, has been withdrawn from the 1973 highway fatality toll.

The State Accident Records Bureau said Friday an investigation shows Manley was a pedestrian when struck by a Union Pacific train on Dec. 22, three miles south of Steele City. Pedestrian-train accidents do not count toward the motor vehicle traffic toll.

Beatrice Girl's Sight Is Gone, Doctors Say

Beatrice (UPI) — The father of a young Beatrice woman, seriously injured in a two-car crash earlier this week, said Friday doctors had told him they were unable to save his daughter's sight.

Leonard Whittaker said his daughter, Nancy, 17, remained in serious condition at Lincoln General Hospital with facial lacerations, a broken pelvis and a skull fracture.

Miss Whittaker was a passenger in a northbound car driven by Eric Maurstad, 20, of Beatrice, when it slammed head-on into an oncoming car on U.S. 77 Wednesday 7.5 miles north of Beatrice.

Killed outright in the crash were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fraser of Washington, Kan., who were in the southbound vehicle.

Maurstad and another passenger in his car, Paul Kramer, 19, also of Beatrice, remained in good condition at Menonite Hospital in Beatrice.

Reaction Is Mixed To Ambulance Plan

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Proposed legislation to license all ambulances in Nebraska and certify drivers and attendants is drawing mixed reactions from personnel who would be affected.

The 20-page measure would establish for the first time standards for both vehicles and personnel who transport accident victims and other patients. It was endorsed unanimously last week by the State Health Board.

The Rev. Keith Roupf of Fairfield, secretary-treasurer of the Nebraska Rescue and Emergency Care Assn., said his 400-member organization has not yet taken a position. He expects the issue to be somewhat controversial, although he personally views it as "a guarded plus."

"It needs further study, but it does appear to be a step in the right direction," said the Rev. Mr. Roupf. "For example, it calls for the establishment of paramedic pilot programs, and this would seem to be most desirable."

The Rev. Mr. Roupf said proposed equipment requirements appear to be "very minimal" and within easy reach of all volunteer units. He anticipates considerable opposition, however, to annual certification of personnel at $10 per person.

Norm Savery, newly elected volunteer fire chief at Crete, said he is wary of provisions giving the State Health Board "open-end power" in establishing rules and regulations. But he added that he would prefer to reserve full judgment until later.

"It seems to me the rules and regulations should be spelled out in law rather than left to the discretion of a board or department," he commented.

Savery said some volunteers also are fearful that extreme training requirements might be imposed. Only about half of Crete's 45 volunteers have completed emergency medical service training as it now exists, he said, yet "there is talk of courses which would be much more demanding of time."

Savery added that under the "strictest interpretation," the proposed regulations could probably eliminate half the ambulances in the state through one requirement alone: a stipulation requiring ambulance side doors.

A professional, Don Trimm of Fairbury, said that in his opinion the legislation would upgrade ambulance service throughout the state. He reasoned that "anybody responsible for a life should have some criteria to meet."

"It won't be detrimental to the many good volunteer units which exist," said Trimm, a Jefferson County deputy sheriff and director of the Jefferson County Ambulance Service (District 33). "Yet it would weed out the guys who just want to run a siren and won't take proper training."

Wayne Mayor Fires Both Police Chiefs

Wayne (UPI) — Mayor Kent Hall said Friday he applied a "unique way to handle a unique situation" by firing both his police chiefs.

Hall originally fired Chief Vernon Fairchild last spring in a flap over Fairchild's use of undercover agents in a liquor investigation.

A District Court ruled that since Wayne is a class-one city, it should have placed Fairchild under the civil service system.

Fairchild won reinstatement and back pay, and Hall placed the police department under civil service.

Evers, meanwhile, was still on probation, with his six months up Dec. 31, and not under civil service.

In order to keep Evers from being under the civil service system, Fairchild said he fired him with a month's pay of $825 as severance.

Hall said his letter dismissing Fairchild had been sent to the civil service board, which was expected to meet on the issue within a week.

"If I had not removed Chief Evers," Hall said, "we would have had two chiefs under civil service and the problem wouldn't have been solved at all."

Until the civil service board acts on Fairchild's case, Hall said Assistant Chief Pat Hailey would head the six-man police department.

By The Associated Press

The 1973 session of the Nebraska Unicameral was selected as the top news story of the year in Nebraska by members of the Associated Press.

The session was marked by fiscal restraint and major enactments on abortion, capital punishment, and repeal of ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Agriculture and related issues also rated high in the eyes of Nebraska AP broadcast stations and newspapers.

Stories about price freezes ordered by the Administration and resulting meat boycotts in Nebraska and across the nation in August and September rated the No. 2 spot.

In third place, was the many-faceted story of growing demand for farm products, bumper yields in Nebraska and a generally good year for the state's farmers.

The continuing mystery surrounding the disappearance of Edwin and Wilma Hoyt of rural Culbertson and the discovery of body parts in a lake remained in the news from October through late December, when murder charges were filed against a McCook couple.

Heavy floods which caused widespread damage in southeastern Nebraska also occupied headlines in the fall as did presidential pronouncements on the energy shortage and related moves by communities, corporations and individuals to conserve existing supplies. These occurrences were Nos. 5 and 6, respectively.

In seventh place was a story which had its roots in a 1958 murder spree in Nebraska. Carl Fugate, then 14, accompanied Charles Starkweather on the killing rampage. She was sentenced to life imprisonment, but the State Pardon Board in late October commuted her sentence to 30 to 50 years, which in effect removed a roadblock to her eventual parole.

The remaining top 10 stories of the year, in declining order, were the April slaying of State Trooper George Amos Jr. along Interstate 80 near Lexington; the fortunes of the University of Nebraska football team under Coach Tom Osborne; and the year-long discussion of whether the state would accept facilities at defunct Hiram Scott College as a gift from Scottsbluff interests. The board of Regents ultimately decided to accept the land and some buildings for use as an agricultural research facility.

Other stories receiving prominent mention included:

—Politics, including the reaction to Watergate; six of seven incumbents voted out in Omaha council election; and jockeying begins for 974 elections.

—Womens rights, including the abortion controversy and legislative repeal of ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment.

—Justice Department begins suit against alleged discrimination.

—Fire sweeps forest south of Chadron.

—Difficulties at State Penal Complex, including killings, inmate involved in shooting at Fremont, and work release woes.

16 Nebraska Counties Receive Extra Propane

Kansas City, Mo. — The Federal Energy Office here said 770,500 gallons of propane have been distributed to 16 Nebraska counties to meet critical needs.

James R. Newman, FEO regional director, said the fuel was for heating hog brooders, drying grain and heating residences.

Formal request for the fuel came from Paul H. Sindt, state executive director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS). Newman said county ASCS representatives identified the individual needs.

Hewitt Appointed Deputy Boys Town Administrator

Boys Town (AP) — Edwin J. Hewitt, 68, has been named deputy director for administration of Boys Town, it was announced Friday.

Hewitt, of Omaha, is one of four deputy directors who will assist Father Robert Hupp in various phases of the Boys Town program.

Father Hupp previously announced appointment of Dr. Patrick E. Brookhouser as director of the Boys Town Institute for the Study and Treatment of Hearing and Speech Disorders in Children.

The appointment of a deputy director for youth care programs is expected in the near future, Father Hupp said. The fourth assistant will be a deputy director for research.

Hewitt has had wide experience as an administrator, most recently as finance director for the city of Omaha. He held that post from 1957 until he retired earlier this year.

Hewitt will assume the post at Boys Town Jan. 2.

Douglas County Judge Elected

Omaha (AP) — Douglas County District Court Judge James A. Buckley Jr., has been elected by fellow judges to serve as presiding judge of the Fourth Judicial District beginning next July.

Buckley's election came at the annual judges meeting. He is the youngest of 12 District court judges. He is 42.

Consultants Urge 3 New Shopping Centers

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

By the year 2000 Lincoln will need three additional regional shopping centers located in the north, west and south side of town, along with a strong downtown and Gateway Shopping Center.

That is just one of the recommendations made by the city's economic consultants, Hammer, Siler, George Associates of Denver, in a preliminary report on the city's future needs for major commercial centers in the next 27 years.

The report will be part of a presentation to the City Council Jan. 9.

The consultants recommended the three new centers be located:

—Along Old Cheney Rd. or Hwy. 2, ranging in size from 780,000 to 935,000 square feet on a 71- to 85-acre tract.

—Along Superior Ave., ranging in size from 565,000 to 765,000 square feet on a 51- to 70-acre tract.

—Near the N.W. 48th and Interstate 80 intersection, ranging in size from 360,000 to 600,000 square feet, on a 33- to 56-acre tract.

Location Would Vary
However, the consultants point out, if the city changes its policy and allows the urbanization of the Stevens Creek watershed, the third new center should be located in the east, not the west.

If urbanization occurs, the consultants recommend that the proposed centers on the north and south sides of town be enlarged in size and that Gateway be expanded.

Currently, Gateway shopping center takes up approximately 725,000 square feet of commercial space.

Although recommending the three new centers, the consultants caution city officials that the timing and phasing in of the complexes "is important to Lincoln's overall commercial strategy."

City lawmakers are faced with making a decision on the shopping center issue with three such applications hanging on its pending list.

Three Proposals
The three centers and sizes proposed are:

—A 600,000-square-foot center proposed by Hub Hall Co. at 56th and Old Cheney Rd.

—A 1 million-square-foot center proposed by Ericson Development Corp. at 27th and Old Cheney Rd.

—A 500,000-square-foot center proposed by General Growth Development Corp. at 84th and O.

In addition to recommending construction of three new centers, the consultants are recommending construction of additional neighborhood shopping centers which deal mainly in "convenience goods."

By the year 2000, Hammer, Siler, George recommends construction of some 28 such centers on five-acre sites.

In making the recommendations to city officials, the consultants made the following assumptions:

—The commercial potentials are tied to a county population forecast of 304,200 for the year 2000, assuming that IBM will locate in the area.

CBD Desirable

—The maintenance of the central business district as the dominant commercial center is desirable, as is the preservation of the older established centers and the concentration of new businesses in shopping centers rather than in strip developments.

—The distribution of future growth within Lancaster County "is consistent with the current state of the comprehensive plan."

As in an earlier report to city and county officials, the consultants point out that there has been a substantial shift in the pattern of "shoppers goods" sales within the county over the past 10 years. The consultants define shoppers goods as department store items, as opposed to convenience goods found in neighborhood centers, such as grocery items.

The most noticeable shift in sales has been the draining away of downtown sales to Gateway and other strip developments.

Gain Possible

Hammer, Siler, George pointed out that if no new shopping center is built by 1980, the central business district could reverse its declining trend and even gain 3%, while Gateway would gain by 2%.

If the central business district could attract another major department store, downtown retail sales could climb to $90 million by 2000. Downtown retail sales currently total $54.3 million.

A second alternative assumes a smaller increase in downtown retail sales, with the current downward trend reversed so that sales could stabilize at $59.3 million.

Failure to revitalize the downtown or a decision to emphasize non-retail activities in the central business district would result in the continuation of the declining shoppers goods sales downtown through 1980. Under this plan, sales would level off at $50 million by 2000.

Guard, Authority Seek Agreement

Nebraska Air National Guard (ANG) officers and members of the Airport Authority vied Friday to try to work out their "marital" differences over the Guard's operation at the municipal airport.

During a special briefing at the ANG headquarters, Nebraska Army National Guard Adjutant General Francis Winner said, "I think our problems are not insurmountable."

At issue is the extension of the Guard's contract to use airport facilities and provide snow removal and fire protection services to the airport. The five-year contract called for a yearly payment of $5,000 in rent. When the contract expired more than a year ago, negotiations were to have begun on determining the new rent rate.

Not Paying Rent
However, no agreement has been reached and in the interim the Guard has not paid the rent.

Gen. Winner said in an interview following the briefing that the Guard's position is "our rent is suspended until a new contract is negotiated."

"We have one point on the contract and they obviously have another," he said.

The adjutant general said the ANG is agreeable to submitting the dispute to arbitration and said several months ago that solution was suggested to the Airport Authority.

To Be Bound
"We both agreed to be bound by that decision," Winner said.

Bryan Hospital

Receives Word Of Accreditation

Bryan Memorial Hospital has just received word that it is accredited for the next two years by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals.

The commission examined the hospital's records and facilities last September. Inspection is voluntary, but the commission's standards are recognized by the federal government as the norm for the level of patient care a hospital must maintain to be eligible for such federal programs as Medicare.

Bryan's last survey by the commission was in 1971.

At the Dec. 18 authority board meeting, board members indicated that no progress has been made in settling the dispute.

Press reports of that meeting quoting board members' displeasure over guard operations prompted the special meeting Friday, Winner said.

Comparing the Guard-authority relationship to a marriage partnership, Winner quipped, "Whether it's a marriage of love or a marriage of convenience is the question."

Airport Authority Chairman Dick Chapin indicated the board's willingness to resolve the matter, saying, "Communications has been our biggest problem."

'Camaraderie'
"We're here in the spirit of agreeable camaraderie," Chapin said, and extended an invitation to Guard officers to attend board meetings.

Commenting on some of the complaints registered by board members and residents in Lincoln Air Park West, base commander Col. Fred Bailey said, "We know we have noisy airplanes. We regret there's not much we can do about it."

He noted that the ANG tries to keep jets flying sonic boom flight patterns away from towns and reported that the Guard is trying to keep engine run-ups to a minimum. Those run-ups, which often take 30 minutes, wear out the runways, according to Airport Authority officials.

"Our operations help upgrade the Lincoln Municipal Airport," Bailey told board members, Federal Aviation Administration officials and others attending the ANG tour and briefing.

Commenting on the tactical reconnaissance group headquartered in Lincoln, Winner said, "This group generally is a superior group. They compete with regular Air Force units and generally do better."

On another development, Bailey reported that the fuel crunch has hit the ANG. It has been grounded until further notice.

Additional Compensation Is Given Sac, Fox Nation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Indian Claims Commission has awarded an additional compensation of almost $2 million dollars to the Sac and Fox Indian Nation for 3.65 million acres of land ceded to the United States 169 years ago.

The commission said Friday it had found that the U.S. government had paid "an unconscionable consideration" to the Sac and Fox Indians of Iowa, Oklahoma and Missouri. Under the 1804 treaty, the government agreed to supply the nation with $1,000 in goods annually in exchange for 2,012,700 acres of land in what is now western Illinois and 1,628,724 acres in east-central Missouri.

The unanimous decision on the $1,969,585 award by the five commissioners is final unless appealed to the U.S. Court of Claims, a spokesman said.

The Missouri tract runs 60 miles down the Mississippi, to where it meets the Missouri River about 17 miles north of St. Louis. It stretches west for 30 to 55 miles, covering 55 complete present townships and 18 partial ones. The Illinois tracts are in the northwestern and southwestern corners of that state.

The regulations are effective next Tuesday. Dated Wednesday, they were published in the Federal Register Friday. Maximums and minimums apply to the six months ending Monday, the regulations said.

"Since these changes are effective for the entire fiscal year 1974, state agencies and schools must know of the changes as soon as possible," the entry said, so prior notice of the new rules and time for public comment on them were dispensed with as "impractical and contrary to the public interest."

The rules also do away with specific eligibility criteria for above-average reimbursement rates.

New Regulations Set For School Lunches

Washington (AP) — The Agriculture Department Friday announced new regulations for the National School Lunch Program, setting reimbursement levels based on food prices during the past six months.

Most of the changes stem from revisions signed into law by President Nixon on Nov. 7. The other changes were made on the department's own authority.

As mandated by the new law, the rules increase the maximum reimbursement for a free school lunch by a dime, to 70 cents, and establish a 60-cent maximum for reduced-price lunches.

The program, in which an estimated 85 per cent of the nation's schools participate, provides reimbursements for all lunches served, with additional payments to schools for lunches served free or at a reduced price to lower-income pupils.

Classes To Resume On S.D. Reservation

Pine Ridge, S.D. (UPI) — The Bureau of Indian Affairs superintendent on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation said classes in the seven reservation schools would resume after the holidays on schedule Jan. 7.

Kansas City (AP) — Maj. Francis Tye, commander of the police department traffic division, said the shortage of gasoline is a factor in a 36% decrease of traffic accidents in Kansas City the first two weeks of December.

Pudgy Teens Try For Part In Film

NEW YORK (AP) — A cattle call, one hopeful lad termed it.

He was one of hundreds of fat, freckled, skinny, strident, muted, fuzz-faced or mustachioed teen-agers who responded Friday to an open casting call for a Warner Bros. film about pudgy kids.

"Have you done any acting?" director Jerry Schatzberg asked a 14-year-old fidgeting before his makeshift desk in a rehearsal hall.

"Not really," Lisa Dibek of the Bronx replied.

"Would you be too shy?" queried Juliet Taylor, an agency casting director.

Eyeballs fluttering, Lisa smiled, "I don't think so."

Schatzberg said he needed three fat teens to star in "Dinky Hocker Shoots Smack," a story of children alienated from their parents. One stuffs his face because his mother devotes herself to a weekly encounter group for former drug addicts.

"I'm not a fantastic actor, and I'm even less of a singer," a youngster with curly black hair was saying as he shifted from foot to foot.

"Thank you," Schatzberg told him, shrugging at the comment.

"If they've got it, they're going to put it right out front," he explained between interviews, which rarely lasted more than half a minute.

The youngsters, lugging winter coats and wrinkled resumes, encamped on the wooden floor and lined up and down the block for a chance at stardom.

Joanne Barry, 16, of Manhattan, said she had never acted but that "everybody says I've got a big mouth."

After her interview, 15-year-old Susan Kim of Port Chester said she didn't know how it went.

"All I saw was bright lights, and then I was out," she lamented.

Her brother Daniel, 16, maintained that he showed up "mainly because she's here."

"Some excuse," his sister interrupted.

"Well, there's always the innate actor," Daniel conceded.

Is he going to be the next teen star?

"No way," he grimaced, allowing that it was "an interesting experience" anyway.

Schatzberg said it would be several weeks before he decides who gets the fat parts. How fat, financially, has not been determined.

Perth, Australia (UPI) — Dropping bikini tops is increasing on Perth Beaches.

Another six girls Friday doffed their bras to challenge the law.

Three girls, aged 18, 19 and 21, who refused to give their names but said they were former nurses, swam and sunbathed topless at one western Australian beach. At another Perth beach, three more women took off bikini tops within 100 yards of the main swimming area.

On Thursday an attempt to test the law was made by Miss Gerry Fitzgerald, 24, at a third beach. Friday she showed the painful results of her campaign for topless sunbathing.

"See that sunburn?" she said, turning down the bedcovers to reveal a lobster-red bosom. "I won't go through that again."

The most curious bather was a six-year-old boy who confronted Miss Fitzgerald and asked: "Are you a bloke (man) or a chick?"

"What does it look like?" countered Miss Fitzgerald.

According to the press reports, which did not mention Miss Fitzgerald's statistics or if any action had been taken against the topless bathers, "the little boy blushed."

South Dakota Signs Waivers To Allow Trial

Gering (AP) — A 20-year-old Porcupine, S.D., man signed waivers here Friday permitting his return to South Dakota to stand trial in connection with the killing of Dennis Janis Dec. 22 on the Pine Ridge Reservation.

FBI Agent Robert Kinsey said Raymond Pawnee Leggins will be returned to the reservation to face federal charges of second degree murder.

Kinsey said bond was set at $10,000. Leggins is being held in Scotts Bluff County Jail pending arrival of a U.S. marshal who will take him to South Dakota for a Jan. 4 arraignment.

Nebraska IRS Chief Retiring

Omaha (AP) — Richard P. Vinal, district director of Internal Revenue Service in Nebraska for nearly 14 years, will retire Dec. 31.

Vinal was appointed district director in 1960. He came to Omaha after serving as assistant district director in New Orleans and Kansas City.

Nebraska Could Face Three-Man Pass Rush In Cotton Bowl

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Dallas — Two of Nebraska's poorest offensive showings this season came against a team dropping eight players back for pass coverage, rushing with only three.

The Huskers are apt to see that same thing when they face Texas in the Cotton Bowl here on New Year's Day.

"Our pass rush wasn't considered one of our strong points," Longhorn defensive end Malcolm Minnick admitted Friday in a telephone interview from Austin, Tex., to a dozen writers in the press headquarters here.

"But," he added, "if people would have noticed, on pass defense much of the time, we were dropping eight people back and rushing the passer with only three."

Asked if the Longhorns might not change up a bit on that to show the Huskers something new, Minnick responded, "To quote an old phrase of coach Royce's, 'we're gonna dance with who bring us.'"

But defensive back Jay Arnold, who was in on the same telephone hookup, noted quickly that the eight-man pass coverage was only one of the Texas defenses.

The two teams that used the eight-man pass coverage against the Huskers during the season were Kansas and Oklahoma. Against Kansas, Nebraska threw only eight times and against Oklahoma, the Huskers didn't run a single play from scrimmage from the OU side of the 50-yard line.

"The thing we've got to do to prevent that sort of thing," NU split end Frosty Anderson observed in discussing the eight-man pass coverage, "is to get our running game established."

"The key to keeping them from doing that is to be able to run. We'll take whatever they'll give us."

Even with only a three-man rush from Kansas and Oklahoma, the Huskers still were not able to establish a running game against those two.

"Our offensive line knows that we've got to be able to control the line of scrimmage to get our running game going," adds all-American offensive tackle Daryl White.

Arnold calls the Huskers David Humm "the best quarterback we will have faced. His passing, coupled with his ability to read defenses so well, makes him a real good quarterback."

And Arnold asserts that Humm's hesitancy to run doesn't make it any easier to defense him.

"He's got two fine running backs," Arnold points out, "so, he doesn't need to run with it himself."

But if the Huskers should switch signals during the game and go with backup quarterback Steve Runty, it would cause the Longhorns to make some quick on-the-field adjustments.

"We've looked at some films of him," Arnold says of Runty, "But we haven't done anything to prepare for him."

"We've been busy enough getting ready for Humm. If they should send Runty in, we'd just have to make the adjustments on the field."

Arnold says he has no real preference as to whether he'd rather see a scrambling type such as Runty or a dropback passer such as Humm opposing the Longhorns.

"The only real scramble we faced this year was Joe Barnes of Texas Tech," Arnold explains, "and he did us some damage."

"Being in the secondary, I guess I'd rather have a quarterback that didn't scramble around back there while his receivers were trying to get away from me."

FORT SPARKS CORNHUSKER WIN

—SUN BOWL SET—

Auburn Ready For Missouri

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Auburn and Missouri, two proud teams struggling with similar frustrations, clash Saturday in the Sun Bowl in what shapes up as a fierce defensive duel.

Missouri Coach Al Onofrio announced he will open with junior Ray Smith at quarterback in place of veteran John Cherry, who directed the Tigers most of the year.

"Both are good quarterbacks and I'm not really worried about either one of them," he said. "I plan to use two quarterbacks, but Ray Smith will start."

The game, which starts at 1 p.m., EST, will be televised nationally by CBS and represents the first meeting ever between the two teams, both of whom are coming off late-season slumps.

In fact, it might be billed as the Redemption Bowl. Auburn, of the Southeastern Conference, lost three of its last four games, and Missouri, of the Big Eight, dropped four of its final five.

Both coaches hope to make up for the late-season disappointments with a bowl victory.

"So much more was expected of us than we were able to produce this year," said Auburn's Ralph "Shug" Jordan. "And I would say it was disappointing for Missouri, too, after beating Nebraska, to go downhill toward the end of the season."

"Both schools badly need to win to salvage something from a disappointing year and also to look to the future."

Auburn, a 10-game winner a year ago, slumped to 6-5 in 1973. Missouri reeled off six straight victories this season, rose to a No. 7 ranking and then collapsed, winding up 7-4.

Injuries and other factors forced a shakeup in key personnel for both squads, but most of the wounded have returned and will see action Saturday.

Four different players guided Auburn attack during the season but Jordan plans to go with veteran Wade Whitley, last year's Gator Bowl hero who has been hampered by a shoulder injury. Should he falter, Jordan said, freshman Phil Gargis will take over.

Time Moved Back

Bennet — The time for Sunday's open shooting here at the Izaak Walton League has been changed from 1 p.m. to 2.

Neither club relies heavily on passing but both Whitley for Auburn and Smith for Missouri said they were not reluctant to put the ball in the air if necessary.

"I don't think either team is known right now for great, explosive-type offensive play," Jordan said. "But both have gotten a lot of mileage out of their defensive units."

The game, expected to attract a crowd of about 25,000, features several outstanding performers, including Auburn's Mike Fuller, the nation's leading punt returner.

For Jordan's Tigers, or War Eagles as they also are known, the Sun Bowl appearance is their sixth straight bowl venture, dating back to their first visit here in 1968.

It is Missouri's second consecutive bowl outing and its first visit to the Sun Bowl.

Saturday's contest marks the 13th bowl appearance for both clubs.

Georgia Wins Peach Bowl

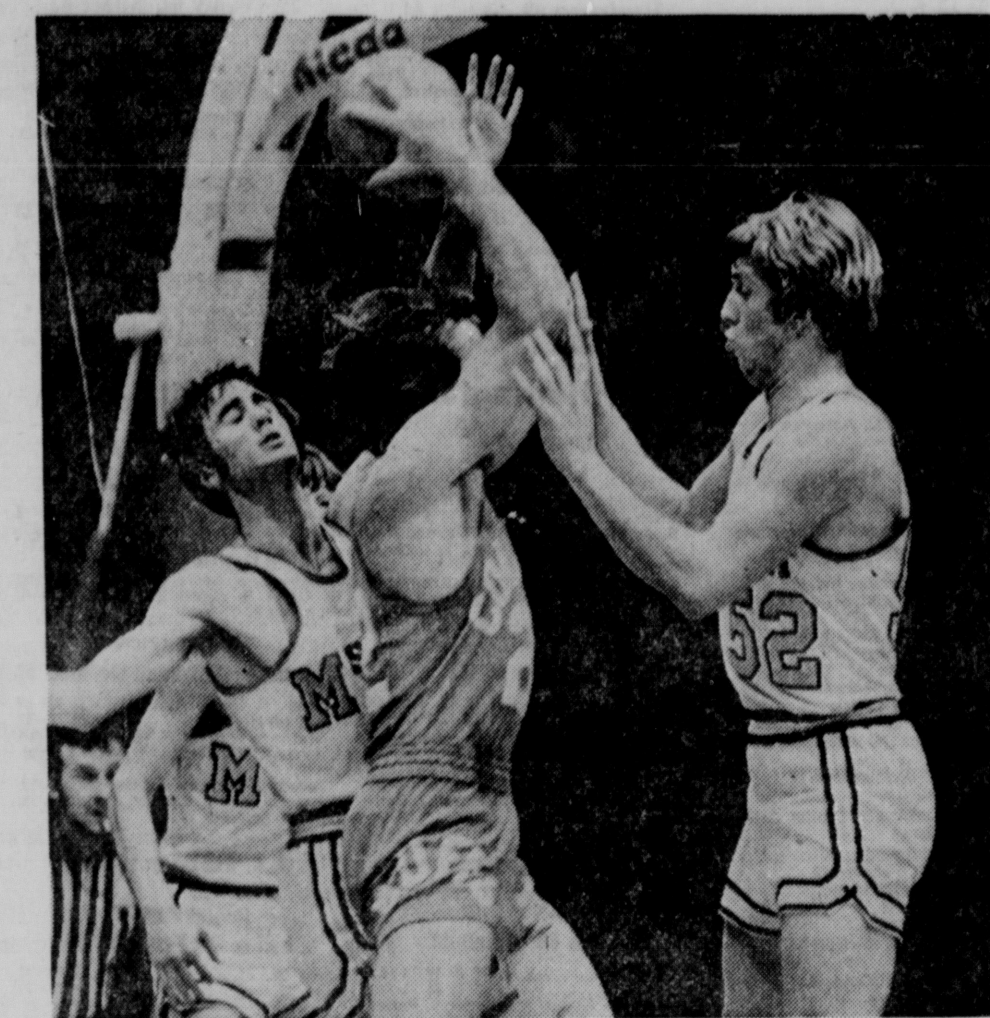

Atlanta (AP) — Andy Johnson passed for one touchdown and scored another while Georgia's defense consistently turned in the big plays Friday night and the Bulldogs trimmed Maryland 17-16 in the Peach Bowl football game.

Johnson's one-yard sneak with 4:24 left in the third quarter following a fumble recovery at the Terps' eight-yard line proved to be the deciding touchdown as Maryland's offense, wheeling for big gains all night in the middle of the field, had to settle for two field goals the rest of the way.

Five times Maryland, the Atlantic Coast Conference runner-up, moved inside the Bulldog 15 without scoring touchdowns.

Steve Mike-Mayer booted field goals of 25 and 28 yards in the fourth quarter and had a 36-yarder in the second period.

Maryland saw one threat end on Steve Taylor's pass interception in the end zone, another when Sylvester Boler forced a fumble which Dick Conn recovered.

Tom Melsen scored 17 points and Russell Shurts added 15 as Mines defeated a stubborn Bellevue College squad 58-55. Brian Wendler poured in 29 points to push Chadron to a tight 76-72 win over Western State of Colorado.

Pius X Hits Scribner, 73-56

Wayne — Lincoln Pius X put together a second-quarter scoring spree enroute to a 73-56 win over Scribner in the Wayne State Holiday Tournament in Friday's consolation bracket.

The Thunderbolts trailed by seven points at the end of the first quarter before they finally broke loose. Pius X outscored Scribner by 10 points with a 21-point second quarter.

For the game, Pius X hit 50 per cent from the field, vastly improved over Thursday night's 30 per cent in a loss to Syracuse. The Pius X offense pleased coach Don Kelley.

"We were subjected to a lot of standing around Thursday," he said. "We talked to the players about it and they responded with more movement against Scribner to break open for the good percentage shots in and around the free throw line."

Scribner attempted to hold Pius X with a man-for-man defense and that was what the 'Bolts wanted.

Kelley noted that Pius X is basically a man-for-man team and that the 'Bolts have been having trouble with the zone.

Scribner held on to its man-for-man until two minutes were left in the third quarter. By then, the game was out of reach.

In other games, undefeated Plattsmouth upped its record to 6-0 in a semifinal 67-61 overtime win with Wayne.

Plattsmouth had held the lead throughout most of the second half after dominating second quarter play, 21-11.

It was Plattsmouth's pressure defense that forced 18 Wayne turnovers to eventually put the overtime out of reach.

In the other semifinal game, Syracuse lost to rugged West Point Central Catholic, 72-58.

A tough Syracuse man-for-man defense kept Central Catholic off the scoreboard for almost the first three minutes, but Central Catholic dominated the boards, by 56-46. Syracuse had 17 fewer shots from the field.

In the tournament's other game North Bend beat Albion, 60-55.

Oklahoma State Falls To Nebraska, 69-62

... OKLAHOMA AGAIN UPSET

Kansas City, Mo. — Sparked by a record shooting performance by guard Jerry Fort and the clutch play of reserve Larry Cox, the University of Nebraska whipped Oklahoma State 69-62 Friday afternoon in the 28th Annual Big Eight Pre-Season Basketball Tournament.

The win moves Nebraska into the consolation championship Saturday night against Kansas University. The Jayhawks earned their way into the consolation contest by defeating Oklahoma 82-72 in the other afternoon game Friday.

Fort scored 22 of his 31 points in the second half after the Cornhuskers trailed the Cowboys 28-26 at halftime.

Nebraska was sluggish during the first stanza as they shot only 32.1 per cent from the floor and committed 14 turnovers.

Trailing 50-47 with 8:32 left in the game, Nebraska tied the score on a three-point play by Cox.

While the shooting of Oklahoma State center Andy Hopson and guard Mark Steinmeyer kept the Cowboys close, Fort and Cox each hit two more buckets down the stretch along with baskets by Ricky Marsh and Steve Erwin and the Huskers had their first win of the 1973 tournament.

Fort's 31 points are the most ever by a Nebraska player in the Big Eight Tournament, braking the old record of 30 set by Don Weber against Kansas State in 1953 and tied by Herschell Turner against Oklahoma State in 1958.

Fort's former high point game of 27 came in last year's semifinal consolation game against Kansas. His 13 field goals are one short of the Nebraska all-time record of 14 held by several players.

After their frigid first half shooting, the Cornhuskers warmed-up in the last period, shooting 64.7 per cent to give them an even 50 per cent for the game.

"I think the biggest turning point of the game had to be the play of Cox," said Husker coach Joe Cipriano after the game. "He played extremely well for the little bit of experience he has in varsity competition."

Cox, who didn't play any in the first half, finished with seven important points while grabbing one rebound and adding two assists.

"I wasn't too staisfied with our board play," Cipriano added. "We weren't playing well on the boards and got hurt several times rebound-wise."

Nebraska and Oklahoma State each finished with 35 team rebounds with Fort and Brendy Lee grabbing eight apiece to lead Nebraska.

Playing in the consolation game is nothing new for Nebraska. It will be the Cornhuskers third straight appearance in the 7 p.m. contest and their fifth in the last six years.

Jackson State Hits UNO, 78-68

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Eugene Short scored 28 points and grabbed 12 rebounds Friday night to lead Jackson State of Mississippi to a 78-68 win over the University of Nebraska at Omaha.

The victory gave the Tigers the championship of the Second Annual UNO Holiday Basketball Tournament.

Earlier in the evening, Washburn University of Topeka, Kan., took third place in the tourney with an easy 79-64 win over Arkansas State.

Named to the all-tourney team along with Short were teammate Glendene Jones, UNO's Calvin Forrest, Arkansas State's Don Scaife, Washburn's Bob Love.

JACKSON ST. (78) — Jones 10, Short 28, Berry 10, Ward 16, Walker 10, Luvene 4.

UNO (68) — Reid 8, Fisher 17, Forrest 10, Seger 13, Worth 2, Roehrig 18. Halftime: Jackson St. 32, UNO 28.

They lost the consolation championship to Oklahoma State last season by a 75-73 score for sixth place in the tourney. That was their worst finish since an identical showing in 1966.

Nebraska, which now stands 7-3 overall, will be going for its fifth straight win over Kansas Saturday night. Cipriano's teams have defeated the Jayhawks four in a row over the past two seasons.

"We know that Kansas is a fine team that plays the boards well," Cipriano said of the Jayhawks who are 5-3 on the season. "They have really improved from a year ago and we are very impressed with them."

Wes Harris came up with a barrage of second-half baskets that fueled patient, deliberate Iowa State to a 61-55 upset over 18th-ranked Kansas State Friday night in the Big Eight Conference preseason basketball tournament semifinals.

Defending champion Missouri capitalized on a last-minute technical foul and the hot hands of Al Eberhard and Steve Dangos for an 89-83 triumph over Colorado in the opening semi-final game.

Missouri battles Iowa State for the championship at 9 p.m. CST Saturday.

Iowa State, behind 33-26 at the half, threw up a tight zone defense around the Wildcats and forced them to shoot from outside. Iowa State registered the upset mostly with field goals, failing to get a crack at the free throw line until four minutes, 26 seconds remained in the game.

Final Super Bowl Spots To Be Decided

By United Press International
The Oakland Raiders ended Miami's record 18-game winning streak earlier this season and one of the key reasons was their ability to stop Dolphin wide receiver Paul Warfield.

But Warfield and quarterback Bob Griese don't think that will be the case Sunday when the Dolphins and the Raiders meet in Miami's Orange Bowl for the American Football Conference title and a trip to the Super Bowl in Houston Jan. 13.

"I don't think that first game will have much bearing on this one," Griese said Friday as the Dolphins prepared for

Gator Bowl Opens Week

By Associated Press

Two scrambling quarterbacks, Joe Barnes and Condredge Holloway, are expected to provide plenty of offensive spark Saturday night when Texas Tech and Tennessee collide in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla.

For Texas Tech, a victory would just about clinch a spot in the postseason Top Ten. The Red Raiders, sparked by the passing and running of Barnes, go into the game with a 10-1 record and are ranked 11th nationally.

Holloway led Tennessee to what Vols Coach Bill Battle called a "Disappointing" 8-3 record, but a bowl victory would certainly take the edge off that disappointment.

In bowl action Saturday afternoon, Houston, 10-1, plays Tulane, 9-2, in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl in Houston, and Auburn, 6-5, meets Missouri, 7-4, in the Sun Bowl in El Paso, Tex. There is also the East-West Shrine All-Star Game in San Francisco. All will be nationally televised.

Top-ranked Alabama, 11-0, clashes with No. 3 Notre Dame, 10-0, in the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans New Year's Eve. On New Year's Day, Ohio State, 9-0-1, plays Southern California, 9-1-1, in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Calif. and Texas, 8-2, opposes Nebraska, 8-2-1, in the Cotton Bowl in Dallas. Penn State, 11-0, faces Louisiana State, 9-2, in the Orange Bowl New Year's night.

Both Battle and Texas Tech Coach Jim Carlen said they expect a tight game, pointing to the similarities between the two squads to support that contention.

"Their quarterback, Barnes, does so many things that our man Holloway does," said Battle. "And the teams are alike in so many other ways."

"There are many similarities between our offenses and defenses," said Carlen. "Barnes and Holloway scramble the same way, but I'd say Holloway has the stronger arm."

Each club also has a top tailback. Senior Haskel Stanback of Tennessee gained 682 yards on 165 carries for a 4.1 average, while freshman Larry Isaac moved into Tech's starting lineup in midseason and finished with 10 touchdowns and an average of six yards per carry.

Houston, ranked 14th, will send the nation's seventh-leading rushing attack against No. 17 Tulane, which compiled a 9-2 record including a stunning upset of arch-rival Louisiana State. Fullback Leonard Parker ran for 1,123 yards this season to become Houston's seventh 1,000-yard rusher in eight years.

Wagers Made By Governors

Harrisburg, Pa. (UPI) — Gov. Milton J. Shapp has bet the governor of Louisiana a bushel of Pennsylvania apples that Penn State will beat LSU in the Orange Bowl.

The two college teams will meet in Miami New Year's Day. Shapp will have to give Gov. Edwards the apples if the Lions lose. If LSU is defeated, Edwards has agreed to give Shapp a case of Louisiana golden yams.

Reds' Anderson Refuses Offer

Cincinnati (AP) — Cincinnati Reds' manager Sparky Anderson said Thursday he turned down an offer by Oakland A's owner Charles Finley because "I owe the Reds so much."

Anderson said Finley contacted him two days after the World Series ended. "I remember the call because I thought it was a joke. I figured just two days after the Series it had to be one of the neighbors joking, but it was him," said Anderson in a telephone interview from his California home.

Unlikely Team Reimplants Limbs

(c) Newhouse News Service
Louisville, Ky. — They are an unlikely team: A Montana rancher and an ex-football player who perform delicate hand surgery under microscopes.

But Drs. Harold Kleiner and Joseph Kutz's successes in reimplanting severed fingers, hands and arms have built Louisville's Jewish Hospital into one of the country's leading limb replantation and hand surgery centers.

Together with Dr. Erdogan Atasoy and a changing team of 12 surgeons in their training program, they perform an average of 4,000 surgeries a year, with at least 10 emergencies a day.

One midnight two of the night's 11 emergencies were flown in from the East Coast.

Four-year-old Paul Smith's left arm had been mangled and all but severed by the driveshaft of a water pump on his father's Greene, N.Y., farm. That same day, five-year-old Lisa Blizard's right hand was cut off when she fell from a sit-down lawnmower in Clifton, Va.

For 15 hours, Kleiner shuffled between two operating tables, reconnecting nerves, tendons and blood vessels barely visible to the naked eye but magnified by loupes and microscopes.

Lisa continues to recover and is expected to regain the use of her hand. Paul's arm had to be amputated, however, when infection threatened his life. Kutz said the youngster's arm had been severely torn in three places by the dirty machinery, too much time had elapsed, and the body rejected the crushed tissue.

"If the limb is badly crushed there's nothing you can do," said the 51-year-old Kleiner. "But a clean-cut amputation stands a good chance if kept cool and replanted within about eight hours. A severed hand will die in about four hours unless cooled. Lisa's hand had been cleaned, wrapped and placed in a styrofoam cooler filled with ice."

A First In 1961

Kleiner, a strapping burnout, Montana rancher (who still owns the ranch he grew up on as well as a couple of farms in Kentucky and southern Indiana) and Temple University grad, reconnected the first arm in 1961. Blown off at the elbow and hanging by a thin thread, this successful replantation came a year before Dr. Robert Malt performed the first replantation of a totally severed arm.

Kleiner was first again in 1962 when he replanted a digit — a non-viable (not completely amputated but unable to live) thumb.

Surprisingly, fingers are far more difficult to replant than limbs because the blood vessels are so small — less than one millimeter in diameter. At least nine structures — one artery, two veins, bone, two nerves, two tendons and skin — must be reconnected.

The two-year-old Microsurgery Unit at Jewish, the University of Louisville's teaching hospital, is said to be the only one of its kind in the United States and is used for eye, brain and other delicate surgery as well as replantation.

"Other people would say 'let's just amputate,'" Kutz said. "Employers and insurance companies push us to just take off the hand and get the guy back to work ... the average length of time lost from work is about 2½ months longer if we don't amputate ... but to me, 2½ months out of a lifetime is not worth an amputation."

Asked why patients fly in from as far away as South Dakota and New York and even Chinese replant specialists come to watch the "K&K" team in action, Kleiner said:

It Takes Patience

"It's patience; attention to detail; motivation — we care whether it works;

a suitable microsurgery technique; and careful postoperative care."

A reporter observed those factors last week as the 44-year-old Kutz presided over three of the hospital's 20 operating rooms, moving from patient to patient. By noon he had performed a half dozen operations including repair of a tennis elbow, a hand caught in a punch press and several severed tendons.

"He makes it look so easy," sighed one assistant as Kutz's massive hands wielded the fine tools. Kutz played football for the University of Detroit and was drafted by the Cleveland Browns but gave up a pro football career for medical studies at the University of Michigan. He claims his first surgery was performed much earlier, however, on chickens in his father's Standish, Mich., grocery and meat market.

Kleiner came to Louisville in 1953, Kutz in 1959.

They talk easily of transplanting tissue with its own blood supply (an artery and a vein) from one part of the body to another. In severe burn cases, for example, skin grafts alone without tissue will die, and having to sew, say, the hand to the belly until the blood supply is restored is rather limiting.

Eventually they envision tissue banks and transplanting cadaver limbs when the patient's own is injured beyond repair.

"We haven't progressed to that yet," Kutz said. "The heart or kidney is a single organ with a single function. In the arm or leg you have nerves regenerating into muscle. You can get it to live; the problem is getting it to function properly."

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it: AXYDLBAAXR is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
